FINAL WORK IS DUE THIS WEEK on the completion of eight piers and west abutment of the Kingston-Rhinebeck bridge; and all piers on this side of the Hudson are due to be finished by mid-May. Jess Comer, project manager for the Merritt-Chapman & Scott, Corp., of New York, contractor for the sub-structure, expects to resume work on eastside piers and abutment next month. All footings are in there and the rest of the work will take about three months, he said. Work is under way on six river piers, and column forms were to be set up starting today. Completion of the eight piers is expected Tuesday. (Freeman photo)

Wilson Firm On Plan for Army Slash

Secretary of Defense Says Manpower Strength to Be 1,027,000 by 1956

Washington, April 4 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson disclosed today he is sticking to the plan for a further cut in army manpower strength.

There have been recent reports of a new "New Look" to leave more men for the ground forces, but Wilson, in testimony prepared for a Senate appropriations subcommittee, said the plan is for an army of 1,027,000 by June 30, 1956. This was approximately the figure originally recommended by Wilson to the Budget Bureau.

Wilson's prepared statement was read to the subcommittee by Robert Anderson, deputy secretary of defense. Anderson said Wilson was unable to be present because of a cold.

By this summer the army will be down from a present strength of about 1,250,000 to 1,102,000. That level had been proposed originally for June 30, Wilson said, but may be reached "a month or two later in order that reductions can be effected in an orderly manner."

SOME ARMY OFFICERS, including Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, chief of staff, contend that a larger army, not a smaller one, would be needed in atomic weapon battlefield fighting. President Eisenhower has described Ridgeway's demands for bigger ground forces as "parochial."

Present combat unit strength of the army is 19 divisions, 12 regiments and 117 antiaircraft battalions. By June 1956, this will be reduced by one division and one regiment, but antiaircraft strength will be increased to 136, Wilson said.

Mentioning tests at Ft. Benning, Ga., and Ft. Hood, Tex., in reorganization of units to meet atomic conditions, Wilson said "the force structure beyond June 1956 may begin to reflect the result of these tests."

WILSON SAID that because Communist military power continues to grow and now includes ability to attack with nuclear weapons, "the United States has reason to be deeply concerned over the serious effects which a sudden attack could conceivably inflict upon us."

Such attack, he declared, "could threaten our survival as a nation."

Therefore, the defense chief asserted, "our primary objective must be to maintain the capability, first to deter an enemy from such an attack; and second, to blunt any such attack if it comes." This requires a combination of "effective retaliatory power and a continental defense system of steadily increasing effectiveness," Wilson said.

In retaliatory capability, Wilson said, there are "very powerful forces in the strategic air command," great capability in the carrier striking force of the navy, and in the tactical units of the air force and marine corps.

Schirick Is Opposed to Rail Plan

Denies NYC Bid On Reorganizing

Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick on Saturday handed down a decision denying the application of the City of New York its request for a hearing on a reorganization plan for the Long Island Railroad which was authorized by the legislature last June. The city contended there should have been a public hearing and sought to have the court "review and annul" the state Public Commission's approval of the plan on the grounds the PSC took action without giving the city a hearing.

New York opposed the reorganization plan authorized at a special session of the legislature chiefly on the grounds that the plan required the city to forgive $10 million dollars in back taxes owned by the bankrupt railroad. It was also argued that the plan gave the railroad certain tax exemptions that would cost the city $2 million annually if continued. A fare increase of 20% was also included in the reorganization plan.

THE CITY HELD it should have been permitted to appear and be heard as a party at a joint meeting of the PSC and the Long Island Railroad Authority held May 20, 1954 when a plan was advanced by the railroad authority for the rehabilitation of the railroad which was in bankruptcy.

Later the state legislature at a special session embodied the features of the proposed plan in special legislation which was enacted on June 14, 1954. That statute was enacted "as a legislative remedy for the emergency then confronting the Long Island Railroad,' Justice Schirick holds, and he holds that under the law, which was passed by the legislature, in order to provide a speedy solution of the emergency then confronting the railroad, it was not under the law necessary to hold a public hearing.

"THE REPORT of the Long Island Railroad Authority to the governor, upon which he based his recommendation to the special session of the legislature, was a full exposition of its features and advantages. On June 28 a hearing was held before the bankruptcy court, at which the

Snowstorm Hits Northeast States

New York, April 4 (AP)—A surprise spring snowstorm left portions of the northeastern states with blocked highways and broken power lines today and piled up a fall as high as 20 inches in interior New England.

The weather bureau in Boston said the snow, combined with sleet and rain, would continue through most of the day in all of New England except northern Maine.

Hardest hit by the storm, which started yesterday, were western Massachusetts, southern Vermont and northwestern Connecticut.

In upstate New York the soggy snow clung to power lines, causing a number to break. It reached a depth of 10 inches in the northern part of the state.

Along the coast the snow melted as fast as it fell in most areas.

Dulles Declines Parley Request From Japanese

Tokyo, April 4 (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today declined an abrupt Japanese request for immediate top level policy talks in Washington.

However, a Japanese government source said Dulles' action was not considered an affront.

Opposition politicians here pounced on the turndown as a slap at the conservative government of Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama.

Newspapers talked of a possible political crisis. Government leaders discounted this and admitted they had not given the United States enough notice.

Only Friday, Japan had proposed sending Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu to Washington this week to try to iron out growing differences between the two countries, especially on rearming the former Axis partner.

Dulles said today his schedule would not permit adequate time to prepare for talks now but suggested a later date.

Authoritative sources said leaders of Hatoyama's Democratic Party have decided on a political gamble—to try on short notice to send a special envoy to Washington. They wanted him (1) to "sell" the new prime minister to the United States, (2) to get America to temporarily let up on its pressure for Japan to rearm faster and (3) to try to get America to "understand" Japan's need to resume relations with her Communist neighbors, Russia and Red China.

The government felt a new approach on the defense issue was urgent. U. S. officials in Tokyo have refused to grant a cut in Japan's share of the cost of stationing U. S. troops here. Japan's proposed budget is based on a cut.

The projected visit leaked to Tokyo newspapers before it could be cleared with the United States.

Hatoyama told reporters he was disappointed at Washington's reaction but he acknowledged Japan should have consulted the United States earlier.

U. S. Could Save 150-Million Cost

Washington, April 4 (AP)—The government could save 150 million dollars a year by consolidating its transportation services, the Hoover commission says.

In addition, it said in a weekend report to Congress, the government should give a bigger slice of the three billion dollars it now spends for transportation to private industry, which the commission said badly needs it.

THE REPORT WAS another in a series from the commission on organization of the government's executive branch. Former President Hoover heads the commission.

It said all Defense Department transport should be put under a military director, and all that for civilian branches of the government under a civilian director.

It recommended that the Defense Department reestablish the Military Air Transport System (MATS) as a consolidated service. That would eliminate separate, and in some cases parallel, services set up for their own use by the navy and air force since MATS was organized.

The report was particularly critical of the air force system, which it said had been used to transport such things as blank forms, religious goods, athletic equipment, musical instruments, lumber, and laundry and dry cleaning equipment. The inference was that these could have been handled by cheaper means.

IT SAID "horrible examples of waste and carelessness" in government transportation could be "multiplied almost to infinity."

Among examples, it said, were pingpong balls flown from Westover Field, Mass., to Berlin, and "a substantial quantity" of dog food flown from the west coast to Okinawa.

Among other recommendations the commission said the Military Sea Transport Service (MSTS) "should perform no services which private industry can render." Congress is trying to build up a strong privately operated merchant marine, it said.

Civilian transport, the commission said, should be supervised by a central traffic bureau in the General Services Administration (GSA).

Rep. Holifield (D-Calif.), a commission member, said he thought the GSA should maintain general policy control over both civilian and military transport. Two other commission members, Atty. Gen. Brownell and Director Arthur S. Flemming of the office of defense mobilization, objected to the recommendation for a defense transport director.

Johnson Is Appointed

Washington, April 4 (AP)—The navy today appointed Capt. Roy Lee Johnson the first commander of the supercarrier Forrestal. The 600,000-ton Forrestal, first ship of her class, is to be commissioned later this year. The assignment to command her is one of the most coveted in the navy.

13 Are Killed In Mexico Wreck

Colima, Mexico, April 4 (AP)—Thirteen persons were known dead today and 60 injured after nine cars of a holiday-packed passenger train plunged over the rim of Colima states "Canyon of Death" last night.

Colima state Gov. Salinas Reynosa, returning here from the wreck scene with the dead and wounded, said "quite a few" of the passengers still were missing. But he added they might have wandered off in the darkness or left the scene by other transportation.

Four of the injured were reported in a serious condition.

REYNOSA SAID a search of the wreckage would be resumed at daybreak.

The derailment occurred 50 miles from the Pacific coast, near the little town of Alsaba.

The governor's casualty report knocked down a previous unofficial estimate received by the Guadalajara newspaper El Informador that about 300 persons were believed dead. Railway officials in Mexico City said earlier they believed the toll would be lower because the train was equipped with steel cars.

THE DEAD AND INJURED were brought back to Colima early today by one of three relief trains sent out from Colima and Guadalajara with doctors, nurses and wrecking crews.

The train left Guadalajara Saturday night and was originally scheduled to reach Manzanillo, almost due west of Mexico City, early Sunday. But it had halted at Ciudad Guzman, a division point, to await repair of a bridge and was 12 hours behind schedule.

The railroad had been packed over the weekend with Holy Week vacationers heading for the Pacific beaches. All trains added extra cars and passengers jammed the aisles and vestibules.

Ice Jam Ends

Niagara Falls, April 4 (AP)—The historic 1955 Niagara river ice jam has come to an anticlimactic end. There was no thunderous crack or rumble as tons of ice gave way to the whirling current. There was no mountainous wall of water as the freed Niagara rushed into Lake Ontario. A massive floe of slush ice—about 200 feet wide and half a mile long—broke off in midstream near the mouth of the river at Youngstown yesterday and flowed quietly out into the lake.

Churchill Is Host to Queen

London, April 4 (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill made ready to entertain Queen Elizabeth II at dinner tonight, and most Britons believed it was the last time the 80-year-old statesman would be host to his young sovereign as Britain's prime minister.

Observers and members of Parliament generally expected the veteran conservative chief to drive to Buckingham Palace tomorrow or Wednesday and hand his resignation to the queen. She is considered certain to summon Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to take over the top post for which he has waited so long.

Two Are Arrested In Local Mishaps

Two persons were injured and two drivers were arrested as the result of five city traffic mishaps Sunday and today.

Edward F. VanLoan, of Port Ewen, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving after a two-car collision at Broadway and Cedar street early today, and a like charge was lodged against Lemuel Ploss, 41, of Cottekill, after a car-taxi mishap on Broadway near St. Mary's church Sunday.

Both drivers were due to appear before City Judge Raymond J. Mino Tuesday morning.

A POLICE REPORT at 2:40 a. m., today, said VanLoan was headed north on Broadway and the sedan of Arrold G. Stevens, of Patchogue, L. I., headed south on Broadway, was stopped and waiting for a traffic light to change at Cedar street. The arrest was by Officer Everett Emmick.

A report at 1:50 a. m., Sunday on the other accident said Ploss was headed south on Broadway, and a cab of the Roosa Taxi, Co., 309 Fair street, operated by Clarence Freer, 56, of 156 Bruyn avenue, was headed north on Broadway.

Irma M. Lyons, RD 3, Box 310, Saugerties, was treated at Kingston Hospital for mouth injuries, when a car she drove struck a tree on East Chester near Park street Sunday.

Officers John Frasch and Edward Edwards reported at 4:09 a. m., that the car, owned by Ralph W. Lyons, Sr., of the same address, was headed north on East Chester street. The car was towed from the scene.

Split Grows Over Upset At Saigon

U.S., France Differ Widely on Issues

Saigon, South Viet Nam, April 4 (AP)—The United States and France today were reported split wide apart over how to deal with the "little civil war" between Premier Ngo Dinh Diem and South Viet Nam's three private army groups.

An uneasy calm meanwhile prevailed in Saigon as a further three-day truce — ending Wednesday — was agreed to by the premier and his opposition, the Hoa Hao religious sect and the Binh Xuyen Society of former river pirates and vice overlords.

IN ACCORDANCE with the truce the Binh Xuyen radio announced its blockade of food coming into Saigon would also be lifted for three days. Food prices declined from the high levels to which they soared when local residents began hoarding after the blockade was announced.

The conflicting positions of the American and French allies were clear-cut:

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, President Eisenhower's special envoy, is counseling Diem to stand firm against the Binh Xuyen and the Hoa Hao.

Gen. Paul Ely, French commissioner general, is urging the premier to make vital political concessions to avoid renewal of hostilities.

Diem is inclined to lean toward the U. S. point of view, annoying and irritating highly placed Frenchmen.

THOUGH COLLINS has never said so publicly, this was understood to be the American position:

As long as the opposition seeks by political means to force Diem out, they are well within their rights. But when they resort to arms and blockade of the civilian population, no legally constituted government can stand by and see its citizens killed and their security menaced.

Though the primary French aim is to avoid more bloodshed, highly charged emotional factors are involved one is the long friendship of the French army and administration for the Binh Xuyen and the Sects during the war. The French supported them financially, had advisers with them, and had their support on more or less permanent basis during the war years.

French officials deny they have encouraged the opposition in their rebellion against Diem. They also have done nothing to discourage it.

Each Side Says Other Is Political

Governor, GOP Sum Up Session

Albany, April 4 (AP)—Democratic Gov. Harriman and a leader of the Republican-controlled Legislature view the 1955 session as one of notable advances, marred by politics played by the other side.

Harriman, in a statement last night, claimed that his administration had jogged the GOP into adopting forward-looking legislation. And he laid to Republicans "inexcusable failures . . . to act where action was clearly required in the public interest."

WALTER J. MAHONEY, Senate GOP leader, maintained that the Republicans had held down taxes, balanced the $1,317,435,872 record high budget, and passed a broad range of constructive legislation.

Reviewing the 12½-week session that ended Saturday at 8:02 p. m. (EST), Mahoney commented: "We have not always had our way. Neither has the governor."

Most political observers agreed that neither the administration forces nor the GOP majority had demonstrated a clear advantage in the legislative jockeying.

Compromise was the keynote of the session. The Democrats lacked the votes to push through program bills, and the Republican strength fell short of the two-thirds necessary to override a veto. So, controversial measures were the product of give-and-take.

KEY LEGISLATION adopted included: A two-year extension of the rent control act, a 15-month delay in the deadline for compulsory safety inspections of automobiles, initial approval for legal bingo, and approval of higher gas tax to go into effect if voters next fall endorse a bond issue to finance a 750-mil-

General Asks Full Story On Yalta Responsibility

New York, April 4 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur says he will agree to the release of documents dealing with "responsibility for the Yalta decisions" only if the record is released in full.

"I would be wholeheartedly in approval . . . to have published all documents which bear upon responsibility for the Yalta decisions," he declared in a statement last night. "But," he added, "I would deprecate most unequivocally a partial and selective release."

THE WARTIME Far Eastern military chief referred to the requested release of certain army documents and messages dealing with the war against Japan.

Publication of these records was sought after MacArthur denied statements that his advice had prompted concessions to the Soviet Union in order to enlist that nation in the Pacific war. These concessions were made by the United States and England at the Yalta conference in February, 1945.

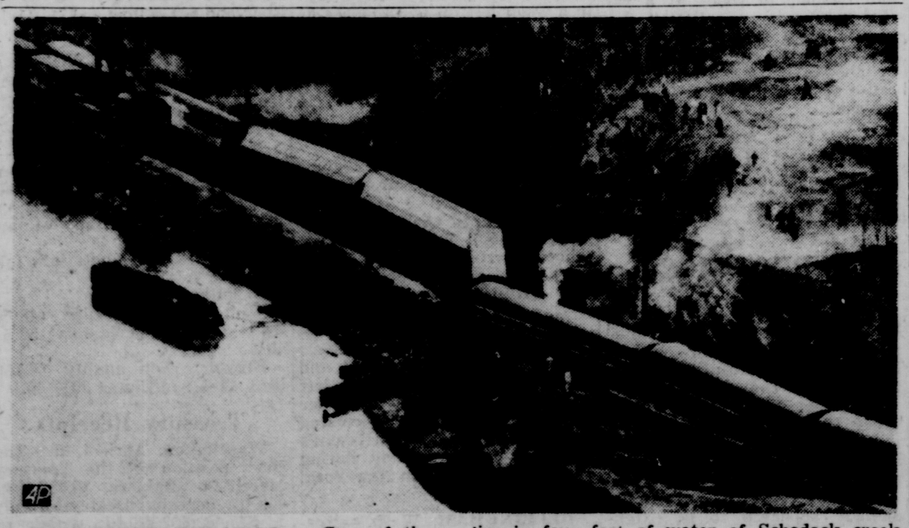

The army on Saturday announced it had boosted the security classification of MacArthur's wartime message file and other documents and was leaving a decision on their release to the Department of Defense.

MACARTHUR SAID he wants the whole record release—if at all — because he understands that the Defense Department is now being asked to release only selected documents dealing with plans for implementing the Yalta decisions. He said this release would exclude "the documentation which preceded the Yalta decisions and which alone might cast light upon the responsibilities involved."

Such partial release, the general added, "could only result in added confusion in the public mind concerning the issue under discussion, which is the responsibility for the Yalta decisions."

In an editorial on March 25 the Washington Post and Times-Herald challenged MacArthur's

Central Opens One Track; Second to Be Used Today

Albany, April 4 (AP)—The New York Central Railroad early today opened one main-line track to reduced-speed traffic — 33 hours after a crack passenger train plunged into a rockslide, injuring more than 35 persons. A spokesman said the second track would be opened late in the day.

W. T. Kelly, 62, of Tarrytown, engineer of the combined Pacemaker and Advance Commodore Vanderbilt, lay in critical condition with injuries suffered in the wreck at sundown Saturday. The leading unit of the double diesel locomotive flipped end over end, plunged down a 10-foot bank and came to rest in a Hudson river bay near Schodack Landing, about 15 miles south of Albany.

The railroad and the State Public Service Commission opened investigations. Neither would comment on its findings but a railroad spokesman said it was possible the spring thaw had loosened rocks on a high embankment on the east side of the tracks.

The New York-to-Chicago train was rushing around a slight curve in a 70-mile-an-hour zone when boulders and shale slid into its path. Passengers said Kelly slammed on the brakes but could not stop in time.

The diesel unit was pointed in the opposite direction when it

Wilson Firm On Plan for Army Slash

Secretary of Defense Says Manpower Strength to Be 1,027,000 by 1956

Washington, April 4 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson disclosed today he is sticking to the plan for a further cut in army manpower strength.

There have been recent reports of a new "New Look" to leave more men for the ground forces, but Wilson, in testimony prepared for a Senate appropriations subcommittee, said the plan is for an army of 1,027,000 by June 30, 1956. This was approximately the figure originally recommended by Wilson to the Budget Bureau.

Wilson's prepared statement was read to the subcommittee by Robert Anderson, deputy secretary of defense. Anderson said Wilson was unable to be present because of a cold.

By this summer the army will be down from a present strength of about 1,250,000 to 1,102,000. That level had been proposed originally for June 30, Wilson said, but may be reached "a month or two later in order that reductions can be effected in an orderly manner."

Mentioning tests at Ft. Benning, Ga., and Ft. Hood, Tex., in reorganization of units to meet atomic conditions, Wilson said "the force structure beyond June 1956 may begin to reflect the result of these tests."

WILSON SAID that because Communist military power continues to grow and now includes ability to attack with nuclear weapons, "the United States has reason to be deeply concerned over the serious effects which a sudden attack could conceivably inflict upon us."

Niagara Falls, April 4 (AP)—The historic 1955 Niagara river ice jam has come to an anticlimactic end. There was no thunderous crack or rumble as tons of ice gave way to the whirling current. There was no mountainous wall of water as the freed Niagara rushed into Lake Ontario. A massive floe of slush ice—about 200 feet wide and half a mile long—broke off in midstream near the mouth of the river at Youngstown yesterday and flowed quietly out into the lake.

Churchill Is Host to Queen

London, April 4 (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill made ready to entertain Queen Elizabeth II at dinner tonight, and most Britons believed it was the last time the 80-year-old statesman would be host to his young sovereign as Britain's prime minister.

Observers and members of Parliament generally expected the veteran conservative chief to drive to Buckingham Palace tomorrow or Wednesday and hand his resignation to the queen. She is considered certain to summon Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to take over the top post for which he has waited so long.

Two Are Arrested In Local Mishaps

Two persons were injured and two drivers were arrested as the result of five city traffic mishaps Sunday and today.

Edward F. VanLoan, of Port Ewen, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving after a two-car collision at Broadway and Cedar street early today, and a like charge was lodged against Lemuel Ploss, 41, of Cottekill, after a car-taxi mishap on Broadway near St. Mary's church Sunday.

Both drivers were due to appear before City Judge Raymond J. Mino Tuesday morning.

A POLICE REPORT at 2:40 a. m., today, said VanLoan was headed north on Broadway and the sedan of Arrold G. Stevens, of Patchogue, L. I., headed south on Broadway, was stopped and waiting for a traffic light to change at Cedar street. The arrest was by Officer Everett Emmick.

A report at 1:50 a. m., Sunday on the other accident said Ploss was headed south on Broadway, and a cab of the Roosa Taxi, Co., 309 Fair street, operated by Clarence Freer, 56, of 156 Bruyn avenue, was headed north on Broadway.

Irma M. Lyons, RD 3, Box 310, Saugerties, was treated at Kingston Hospital for mouth injuries, when a car she drove struck a tree on East Chester near Park street Sunday.

Split Grows Over Upset At Saigon

U.S., France Differ Widely on Issues

Saigon, South Viet Nam, April 4 (AP)—The United States and France today were reported split wide apart over how to deal with the "little civil war" between Premier Ngo Dinh Diem and South Viet Nam's three private army groups.

An uneasy calm meanwhile prevailed in Saigon as a further three-day truce — ending Wednesday — was agreed to by the premier and his opposition, the Hoa Hao religious sect and the Binh Xuyen Society of former river pirates and vice overlords.

IN ACCORDANCE with the truce the Binh Xuyen radio announced its blockade of food coming into Saigon would also be lifted for three days. Food prices declined from the high levels to which they soared when local residents began hoarding after the blockade was announced.

The conflicting positions of the American and French allies were clear-cut:

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, President Eisenhower's special envoy, is counseling Diem to stand firm against the Binh Xuyen and the Hoa Hao.

Gen. Paul Ely, French commissioner general, is urging the premier to make vital political concessions to avoid renewal of hostilities.

Diem is inclined to lean toward the U. S. point of view, annoying and irritating highly placed Frenchmen.

THOUGH COLLINS has never said so publicly, this was understood to be the American position:

As long as the opposition seeks by political means to force Diem out, they are well within their rights. But when they resort to arms and blockade of the civilian population, no legally constituted government can stand by and see its citizens killed and their security menaced.

Though the primary French aim is to avoid more bloodshed, highly charged emotional factors are involved one is the long friendship of the French army and administration for the Binh Xuyen and the Sects during the war. The French supported them financially, had advisers with them, and had their support on more or less permanent basis during the war years.

French officials deny they have encouraged the opposition in their rebellion against Diem. They also have done nothing to discourage it.

General Asks Full Story On Yalta Responsibility

New York, April 4 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur says he will agree to the release of documents dealing with "responsibility for the Yalta decisions" only if the record is released in full.

"I would be wholeheartedly in approval . . . to have published all documents which bear upon responsibility for the Yalta decisions," he declared in a statement last night. "But," he added, "I would deprecate most unequivocally a partial and selective release."

THE WARTIME Far Eastern military chief referred to the requested release of certain army documents and messages dealing with the war against Japan.

Publication of these records was sought after MacArthur denied statements that his advice had prompted concessions to the Soviet Union in order to enlist that nation in the Pacific war. These concessions were made by the United States and England at the Yalta conference in February, 1945.

The army on Saturday announced it had boosted the security classification of MacArthur's wartime message file and other documents and was leaving a decision on their release to the Department of Defense.

MACARTHUR SAID he wants the whole record release—if at all — because he understands that the Defense Department is now being asked to release only selected documents dealing with plans for implementing the Yalta decisions. He said this release would exclude "the documentation which preceded the Yalta decisions and which alone might cast light upon the responsibilities involved."

Such partial release, the general added, "could only result in added confusion in the public mind concerning the issue under discussion, which is the responsibility for the Yalta decisions."

In an editorial on March 25 the Washington Post and Times-Herald challenged MacArthur's

'PACEMAKER' DERAILED — Cars of the New York Central Pacemaker zigzag on right of way after ramming a rock slide and ripping up the track 15 miles south of Albany, near Schodack Landing Saturday. The diesel engine lies in four feet of water of Schodack creek, an arm of the Hudson river, where it landed after plunging down an embankment. Engineer and fireman were injured seriously. Central Opens One Track; Second to Be Used Today

Albany, April 4 (AP)—The New York Central Railroad early today opened one main-line track to reduced-speed traffic — 33 hours after a crack passenger train plunged into a rockslide, injuring more than 35 persons. A spokesman said the second track would be opened late in the day.

W. T. Kelly, 62, of Tarrytown, engineer of the combined Pacemaker and Advance Commodore Vanderbilt, lay in critical condition with injuries suffered in the wreck at sundown Saturday. The leading unit of the double diesel locomotive flipped end over end, plunged down a 10-foot bank and came to rest in a Hudson river bay near Schodack Landing, about 15 miles south of Albany.

The railroad and the State Public Service Commission opened investigations. Neither would comment on its findings but a railroad spokesman said it was possible the spring thaw had loosened rocks on a high embankment on the east side of the tracks.

The New York-to-Chicago train was rushing around a slight curve in a 70-mile-an-hour zone when boulders and shale slid into its path. Passengers said Kelly slammed on the brakes but could not stop in time.

The diesel unit was pointed in the opposite direction when it

Firemen Kept Busy

A run of grass fires kept local firemen moving in circles almost hourly Saturday afternoon and night. A call at 7:12 p. m., was for the Lincoln street area and the last, at 10:07 p. m., was for a fire back of the state armory. Boy's Leg Caught by Tree; Many Sources Called for Help

A pupil at No. 3 School stirred emergency help from about every available source this morning when his right leg became caught under a heavy section of tree near the school.

A relay of calls after police headquarters was first notified at 8:33 a. m., drew out firemen, a public works crew, men of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., the police and an ambulance, and the boy, William Prosser, 11, son of Mrs. Margaret Prosser, 104 Hasbrouck avenue, was freed without serious injury.

THE BOY WAS released after a hole was dug under him. He was taken by a Schultz ambulance to the Benedictine Hospital where he was given emergency treatment and returned to his home. Mrs. Prosser said he suffered no broken bones, but the foot and ankle were bruised and otherwise injured.

Police headquarters set up the relay of calls seconds after the first notice, with Lt. William J. Leonard in charge and Sgt. Francis J. Fagan on the desk. Officers Raymond Wells and Edward Edwards were sent to the scene.

The fire department was notified and sent out Truck 1, Engine 1, and the fire alarm truck. At the scene were Firemen Frank Hornbeck, Arthur Golnek, Donald Williams, Robert Millham, Donald Hammond, Electrician Philip Maines, Equipment Mechanic James Hutton, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, and Deputy Chief James Brett.

Cranes had been requested and the public works department sent a unit with Harold Middaugh and Raymond Brundage. Central Hudson sent George Dall and Hugh Schrowang. Chief Murphy noted "fine cooperation" from the public works and police departments the Schultz ambulance crew and Central Hudson.

WILLIAM STELTZ, of 113 Hasbrouck avenue, who first saw the boy's plight, and called for help, stayed with him to comfort him pending arrival of the police and others.

Ropes were fastened to keep the tree from rolling further on the boy's leg. Then the hole was dug and the boy was slid free of the heavy trunk, which had apparently been left in the area after the felling of a tree. Authorities indicated that Prosser and others had been playing near the log.

Rose Newburgh, of East Pierpont street, an aunt of the boy, accompanied him in the ambulance to the hospital. She handles school traffic near the school.

Census Survey Is To Include Data On New Questions

Supplemental questions on consumer income, migration and family characteristics will be asked in the U. S. Census Bureau's current population survey in April, according to Supervisor Jerome Litzky of the Bureau's district office at New York. The supplemental questions will be in addition to the regular employment and unemployment inquiries asked each month.

Supplemental questions on family characteristics asked in the current population survey in April of last year revealed that the estimated number of households in the United States increased from about 43.6 million to 46.9 million, or 8 per cent, between March 1950 and April 1954. The average annual growth in number of households during these approximately four years was about 800,000.

THE CURRENT population survey will be conducted locally and in 229 other areas of the country during the week of April 11.

Litzky emphasized that all information about individuals furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under Federal law. It is used only to obtain summary figures such as totals, averages, and percentages for various groups in the population and not to show information for particular families or individuals. The information cannot be furnished to any other government agency and thus cannot be used for investigation, taxation or regulation.

Paul Cone Hurt By Gun Explosion

Paul William Cone, 29, of Leeds, received an injury to his right eye when a 30-30 rifle blew up at the breech as he was attempting to shoot a rat Saturday morning, state police of the Catskill station reported.

After treatment at a physician's office, Cone was taken to the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital for treatment.

Troopers said the accident occurred at the residence of Gerald Burns on Deerhead road, town of Athens. Cone, Burns' brother-in-law, took his own rifle from a gun cabinet to shoot at a rat that was attacking Burns' dog about 10:20 a. m. Saturday, troopers said. The gun blew up at the breech, apparently because of a plugged barrel, troopers said.

Man Identified As Bank Robber Arrested by FBI

Los Angeles, April 4 (AP)—The FBI today announced the arrest of a young man identified as the bandit who walked into a crowded New York city bank last Friday and calmly held up a teller for $7,277.

The FBI said John Cavaluzzi, 22, gave no resistance when arrested in a Hollywood apartment last night.

Agent in charge John F. Malone said the youth was picked up on a complaint filed by the Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York last Friday after the lunch-hour robbery.

IN NEW YORK police said Cavaluzzi was identified as the bank robber by the teller who spotted his picture among rogues gallery photographs. They said the man's record showed he had relatives in Hollywood and the FBI was alerted to look for him there.

Cavaluzzi was scheduled for arraignment later today in Los Angeles before a U. S. commissioner. Bond of $50,000 was recommended.

The robbed bank is located in the heart of New York's financial district and was full of noon-hour customers when the neatly dressed bandit strolled up to a window and shoved a note across to teller Robert Y. Barham.

"Keep calm. I want money," it read. "Put all the money in the bag. Give me five minutes to get out."

He came to the airport from his doctor's office.

commission and the city was represented. Full consideration was then given to various aspects of the plan and the cities objection thereto," says Justice Schirick.

"The court concludes that the responsibility reposed in the commission by the Railroad Redevelopment Act was one to be discharged by it after full consideration and examination by its staff, but without any requirement of instituting or permitting an adversary proceeding. Woman, 20, Is Held in Baltimore For Grand Jury

Miss Geneva Williams, 20, of Rocky Mount, N. C., who was arrested in Poughkeepsie after she allegedly concealed the body of her newborn infant in an unused ice locker at the Poughkeepsie railroad station, faces a possible murder charge at Baltimore, Md., the Dutchess county district attorney's office said today.

Miss Williams, who had been held on a misdemeanor charge at Poughkeepsie, waived extradition last week and was turned over to Baltimore county, Md., authorities.

A GRAND JURY in that county will decide whether to charge her with murder after weighing evidence against her.

The arrest followed investigation of the finding the body of a newborn Negro girl baby at the New York Central Railroad station in Poughkeepsie on March 22. The defendant was turned over to Maryland authorities after she told police the child was born in the ladies' room of a train enroute between Washington, D. C., and Baltimore and that it died when she stuffed a cloth in the baby's mouth to keep it from crying, Poughkeepsie police said.

The woman allegedly put the child's body in her suitcase and continued to Poughkeepsie, where she hid it in the unused ice locker at the station, police said.

Myers Purchases Nearby Building

Herbert C. Myers of Myers Electric, 779 Broadway, has purchased the building adjacent to his place of business.

The parcel, purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Harris Brown, includes the driveway between the present Myers Electric building and the newly-purchased building at 781 Broadway, as well as a parking area in the rear.

The building involved in the transaction is occupied by Houston's Art Supply store. It was previously used by the Roosa Taxi Service.

Indicating that the immediate reason for the purchase was the acquisition of the driveway and parking space in the rear, Myers said he had no plans at the present for use of the building, and the sale will not at this time affect the present tenant.

The transaction was completed Friday. Harry Gold was the attorney.

In announcing the purchase, Myers revealed that he plans to cut a door in the rear of his present building opening on the newly acquired parking area, permitting off-street loading of his trucks.

Boy's Leg Caught by Tree; Many Sources Called for Help

A pupil at No. 3 School stirred emergency help from about every available source this morning when his right leg became caught under a heavy section of tree near the school.

A relay of calls after police headquarters was first notified at 8:33 a. m., drew out firemen, a public works crew, men of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., the police and an ambulance, and the boy, William Prosser, 11, son of Mrs. Margaret Prosser, 104 Hasbrouck avenue, was freed without serious injury.

THE BOY WAS released after a hole was dug under him. He was taken by a Schultz ambulance to the Benedictine Hospital where he was given emergency treatment and returned to his home. Mrs. Prosser said he suffered no broken bones, but the foot and ankle were bruised and otherwise injured.

Police headquarters set up the relay of calls seconds after the first notice, with Lt. William J. Leonard in charge and Sgt. Francis J. Fagan on the desk. Officers Raymond Wells and Edward Edwards were sent to the scene.

The fire department was notified and sent out Truck 1, Engine 1, and the fire alarm truck. At the scene were Firemen Frank Hornbeck, Arthur Golnek, Donald Williams, Robert Millham, Donald Hammond, Electrician Philip Maines, Equipment Mechanic James Hutton, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, and Deputy Chief James Brett.

Cranes had been requested and the public works department sent a unit with Harold Middaugh and Raymond Brundage. Central Hudson sent George Dall and Hugh Schrowang. Chief Murphy noted "fine cooperation" from the public works and police departments the Schultz ambulance crew and Central Hudson.

WILLIAM STELTZ, of 113 Hasbrouck avenue, who first saw the boy's plight, and called for help, stayed with him to comfort him pending arrival of the police and others.

Ropes were fastened to keep the tree from rolling further on the boy's leg. Then the hole was dug and the boy was slid free of the heavy trunk, which had apparently been left in the area after the felling of a tree. Authorities indicated that Prosser and others had been playing near the log.

Rose Newburgh, of East Pierpont street, an aunt of the boy, accompanied him in the ambulance to the hospital. She handles school traffic near the school.

Census Survey Is To Include Data On New Questions

Supplemental questions on consumer income, migration and family characteristics will be asked in the U. S. Census Bureau's current population survey in April, according to Supervisor Jerome Litzky of the Bureau's district office at New York. The supplemental questions will be in addition to the regular employment and unemployment inquiries asked each month.

Supplemental questions on family characteristics asked in the current population survey in April of last year revealed that the estimated number of households in the United States increased from about 43.6 million to 46.9 million, or 8 per cent, between March 1950 and April 1954. The average annual growth in number of households during these approximately four years was about 800,000.

THE CURRENT population survey will be conducted locally and in 229 other areas of the country during the week of April 11.

Litzky emphasized that all information about individuals furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under Federal law. It is used only to obtain summary figures such as totals, averages, and percentages for various groups in the population and not to show information for particular families or individuals. The information cannot be furnished to any other government agency and thus cannot be used for investigation, taxation or regulation.

Man Identified As Bank Robber Arrested by FBI

Los Angeles, April 4 (AP)—The FBI today announced the arrest of a young man identified as the bandit who walked into a crowded New York city bank last Friday and calmly held up a teller for $7,277.

The FBI said John Cavaluzzi, 22, gave no resistance when arrested in a Hollywood apartment last night.

Agent in charge John F. Malone said the youth was picked up on a complaint filed by the Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York last Friday after the lunch-hour robbery.

IN NEW YORK police said Cavaluzzi was identified as the bank robber by the teller who spotted his picture among rogues gallery photographs. They said the man's record showed he had relatives in Hollywood and the FBI was alerted to look for him there.

Cavaluzzi was scheduled for arraignment later today in Los Angeles before a U. S. commissioner. Bond of $50,000 was recommended.

The robbed bank is located in the heart of New York's financial district and was full of noon-hour customers when the neatly dressed bandit strolled up to a window and shoved a note across to teller Robert Y. Barham.

"Keep calm. I want money," it read. "Put all the money in the bag. Give me five minutes to get out."

Takes Father's Post

St. Louis, April 4 (AP)—Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., 41, became editor and publisher of the St. Louis Post Dispatch today, succeeding his father who died last week. Pulitzer in an editorial emphasized he would maintain the policy set by his grandfather and father which made the Post-dispatch one of the nation's great crusading newspapers. "We will not only report the day's news but illuminate dark places, and, with a deep sense of responsibility, interpret these troubled times," his editorial said in part.

Goes to Florida

New York, April 4 (AP)—New York's Gov. Averell Harriman flew to Hobe Sound, Fla., today to join Mrs. Harriman in a brief vacation. He said he will be back April 12 to "throw out the first ball" at Ebbets Field. "I've always been a Dodger fan," he said. Harriman had been reported suffering from a sore throat and he coughed some as he boarded Eastern Airline's Flight 611 at La Guardia Field, but said he was "feeling fine." He came to the airport from his doctor's office.

Black Blizzard Subsides

Denver, April 4 (AP)—A white blizzard continued over Wyoming and Montana today, but the dreaded black blizzard had subsided—momentarily at least—in the dry great plains area of eastern Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas. The second spring storm in a week left up to 18 inches of new snow in Wyoming and 12 inches in Montana over the weekend before edging into the plains states with diminished force.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 4 (AP) — A moderate advance in the stock market today was accomplished by a slightly expanded business pace.

Trading hit a rate slightly in excess of Friday's total of 2,660,000 shares.

Today's market started out higher and then ran into some profit-taking that punched only a few holes in the price structure. Most major divisions were higher, and there were many individual stocks sought out by buyers.

Jonathan Bingham, secretary to the Governor, today informed R. O. Gruver, secretary of the board, that Mrs. Kerr would fill out the unexpired term of Mrs. Hutton.

Mrs. Hutton, who was vice chairman of the board, died in January. Her term as a trustee was due to expire October 9, this year.

Police said the pavement was wet at the time and the Oakley car was towed from the scene.

ABOUT TWO HOURS later this morning another Oakley was reported involved in a mishap at Albany avenue and East St. James street.

Officers Raymond Wells and Edward Edwards reported at 4:07 a. m., that Henry E. Oakley, of Stone Ridge, was driving his truck east on Albany avenue, and the other car, a sedan registered in the name of Sam Crider, 771 Broadway, police said, was parked at the curb.

A four-page memorandum is handed down.

Woman, 20, Is Held in Baltimore For Grand Jury

Miss Geneva Williams, 20, of Rocky Mount, N. C., who was arrested in Poughkeepsie after she allegedly concealed the body of her newborn infant in an unused ice locker at the Poughkeepsie railroad station, faces a possible murder charge at Baltimore, Md., the Dutchess county district attorney's office said today.

Miss Williams, who had been held on a misdemeanor charge at Poughkeepsie, waived extradition last week and was turned over to Baltimore county, Md., authorities.

A GRAND JURY in that county will decide whether to charge her with murder after weighing evidence against her.

The arrest followed investigation of the finding the body of a newborn Negro girl baby at the New York Central Railroad station in Poughkeepsie on March 22. The defendant was turned over to Maryland authorities after she told police the child was born in the ladies' room of a train enroute between Washington, D. C., and Baltimore and that it died when she stuffed a cloth in the baby's mouth to keep it from crying, Poughkeepsie police said.

The woman allegedly put the child's body in her suitcase and continued to Poughkeepsie, where she hid it in the unused ice locker at the station, police said.

Myers Purchases Nearby Building

Herbert C. Myers of Myers Electric, 779 Broadway, has purchased the building adjacent to his place of business.

The parcel, purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Harris Brown, includes the driveway between the present Myers Electric building and the newly-purchased building at 781 Broadway, as well as a parking area in the rear.

The building involved in the transaction is occupied by Houston's Art Supply store. It was previously used by the Roosa Taxi Service.

Indicating that the immediate reason for the purchase was the acquisition of the driveway and parking space in the rear, Myers said he had no plans at the present for use of the building, and the sale will not at this time affect the present tenant.

The transaction was completed Friday. Harry Gold was the attorney.

In announcing the purchase, Myers revealed that he plans to cut a door in the rear of his present building opening on the newly acquired parking area, permitting off-street loading of his trucks.

Spiritual Failing Lies in Marriage Attitude: Peale

New York, April 4 (AP)—The No. 1 spiritual failing of Americans today, says Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, is right in their own households:

"Marriage!"

"Couples don't give each other essential respect and esteem any more," he said. "There's too much talk about 'lovin', and not enough about respect for each other in sovereign human souls."

Dr. Peale, the country's foremost counselor of self-fulfillment through "positive" faith, said more than half the approximately 6,000 letters he gets from people each week are about marital troubles.

"SO MANY of them just haven't got moral stamina," he said.

"Wives complain that their husbands are moody or mean, and they wonder if they have any obligation to stick with it. Or they say, 'he doesn't amuse me any more.' They need to realize marriage is a binding spiritual compact."

If they don't, he said in an interview, the institution seems headed into a forest of wreckage and heartbreak. He said one of the best remedies is "to bring the family altar back in the home."

Dr. Peale, whose printed sermons, articles, syndicated columns, books and busy lecture schedule already reach millions, starts a new project today to give advice to the worried and distressed—"to help people."

HE WILL be on a regular commercially-sponsored radio network show (NBC 10:05 a. m. EST).

Proceeds will go to the National Council of Churches, and to the American Foundation of Religion and Psychiatry, which he founded and whose staff of 20 Christian psychiatrists provide free counseling.

In addition to the shaky condition of many American marriages, Dr. Peale said the country's population also is suffering from a widespread, and enervating disease — "anxiety and tension."

It is passed on to children by "timorous parents," he said, and robs millions of their potentialities. He sees confident faith, and positive belief that Christ will help you through difficulties, as the need of an anxious age.

HIS VIEW has an old predecessor: The words of Jesus that faith can move mountains, and that "whatever you ask in prayer, believe that you receive it, and you will."

A buoyant man, Dr. Peale said he often feels bewildered himself by the myriad problems he is asked to deal with.

"These situations are presented to me as if I were a wizard," he said. "This has been one of the hardest things for me. You get the feeling they are leaning on you, dependent. It's pathetic.

"I realize I'm not wise enough to guide them in all these personal matters. What they really want is someone to stick by them. They need to discover that they have that friend in Christ."

Dr. Peale said he himself had been his own toughest problem in solving inner self-doubts.

"WHENEVER I tell anyone they've got to overcome their fears, and think with faith and never with defeatism, and then I myself get to feeling a little anxious, I realize that I've got to keep faith with these people."

At this point, he told a story of pie and a man who got pie-eyed:

"I have a hard time with my weight. I like pie, cake and ice cream. Then one day I met an alcoholic who had slipped. I told him to try getting through just a day at a time without a drink, and to send me a postcard each evening telling me he had done it.

"THOSE POSTCARDS kept coming. And whenever I'd sit down to dinner and start to take that big piece of pie, I'd think, 'if you can tell that fellow to muster will power and faith, the least you can do is apply it to yourself."

Dr. Peale's weight now is down from a onetime 190 to 168, and he has lettuce and cottage cheese for lunch.

Sometimes criticized as presenting Christian faith and "positive thinking" as a key to worldly success, Dr. Peale said any such interpretation is a distortion.

"ANY MINISTER who presents faith in God as a way of material success is not being compatible with Christianity," he said. "It is the way of being successful as a person, of surmounting inner weakness and pride and sin."

Any improvement in your earthly status that results, he said, is strictly incidental. But if that is your motive, he added, you don't have Christian faith, anyhow.

Dr. Peale follows many of his own rules: Each morning when he rises, he has a 10-minute private devotional. And after all these years of speech making, he never stands up to talk without a silent prayer.

"AN INTRODUCTION," he said, "is the most terrifying moment known to man."

Before he or any of his children boards a plane, he follows a prescription he once gave a man who feared planes: Pray for the pilots, the stewardesses and the engines.

"It works," he said.

On his office wall, hangs this motto: "Trust in God and live one day at a time."

Dr. Peale said he believes the great spiritual yearning now evident in this country will mean this generation will go down as a tremendous spiritual milestone in the history of the world and the Christian faith."

Invisible Vaccinations

Omaha (AP)—Doctors following the modern trend of putting vaccination marks where they won't show on little girls who later will wear formal gowns or swim suits, created a problem. A school nurse sent a first-grader home with this note: "Our records show your daughter vaccinated twice. I can't find them. Please inform me of location of vaccinations."

Wormy Protest

San Diego, Calif. (AP)—Suit in Superior Court to dissolve a worm business charged that one partner had short changed the other by five million worms. Howard W. Neal said the shortage was in worms provided for the venture at his ranch, where they were to produce millions of others for sale to avocado growers. Worms are supposed to aerate roots and help organic fertilization. Neal asked $1,500, the value he placed on the five million worms he said he didn't get.

The number of musical instruments in the United States is estimated at 27 millioin.

Profits May Be Greater in 1955

New York, April 4 (AP)—Stock prices rose much faster than corporate earnings or dividends last year. But profits show good signs of increasing at a better rate this year. And some see in this a vindication of the big bull market in stocks which worried some economists and puzzled some senators.

The Associated Press average of the price of stocks of 60 leading and typical industrial corporations, utilities and railroads rose 43 per cent during 1954.

AT THE SAME time that stock values were making this striking rise, the combined earnings after taxes of these 60 companies rose 7.6 per cent. Their prospects for increasing the rate of this profit climb in the first half of 1955, however, are excellent.

The stock price index—in spite of some sharp breaks on the stock market in the first three months of 1955—further rose 2.3 per cent from January 1 to March 31 of this year.

During the first half of 1954, when business was slower and earnings declining, the AP stock price average, reflecting confidence instead of gloom, rose 17 per cent. In the second half, as business began to pick up, the stock price index rose 22 per cent.

There are 30 companies in the AP's industrial component of the stock averages. Although 14 of them turned in profit reports lower than for 1953, the combined total for the 30 was $3,578,827,917, a gain of 11 per cent.

THE STOCK price average of the 30 industrials did strikingly better, soaring 46 per cent in the year, and has climbed another 1.4 per cent since.

Railroads showed contrasting profit and price trends. Combined earnings of the 15 on the AP's index were $385,822,830, down 23.4 per cent from the previous year. Every one of the 15 did poorer than in 1953.

But the rail componet of the stock price average soared 55 per cent, most of the rise in the last half of the year. It has climbed 3 per cent since the first of this year.

AMONG REASONS for investors liking rails: Freight haulage began to pick up last fall. Profits began to recover. Rail freight is expected to increase 18 per cent in the April, May and June quarter over the first three months of this year and to be at least seven per cent higher than in the April, May and June period of 1954.

Utilities fluctuate the least, both in earnings and stock prices. Their rates, and therefore their profits, are regulated closely.

The 15 power and communications companies on the AP's utility index turned in combined earnings of $914,308,386, for a gain of 13.5 per cent over the previous year.

But the bull market caught up some of the utilities, too, and their stock price index rose 23 per cent last year, and 4.4 per cent since the first of this year.

ACCORDING to the experts, investors in stocks have been expressing confidence in the future of business, and looking beyond last year's profit reports, and even beyond just this year's prospects.

Many in the market, however, have been interested less in future earnings prospects than in the expectation that the bull market momentum would keep prices rising, so that they could get in and out and make a fast buck.

But for the long-term investor the cheering thing is that business activity quickened in the final months of 1954, went zooming through the first quarter of this year, and is pulling earnings up with it.

Dividend payments by all corporations showed a total gain of 5 per cent last year. And generous ones are anticipated this year.

The bulls boast that this is just what they had been forecasting.

"I realize I'm not wise enough to guide them in all these personal matters. What they really want is someone to stick by them. They need to discover that they have that friend in Christ."

Dr. Peale said he himself had been his own toughest problem in solving inner self-doubts.

"WHENEVER I tell anyone they've got to overcome their fears, and think with faith and never with defeatism, and then I myself get to feeling a little anxious, I realize that I've got to keep faith with these people."

At this point, he told a story of pie and a man who got pie-eyed:

"I have a hard time with my weight. I like pie, cake and ice cream. Then one day I met an alcoholic who had slipped. I told him to try getting through just a day at a time without a drink, and to send me a postcard each evening telling me he had done it.

"THOSE POSTCARDS kept coming. And whenever I'd sit down to dinner and start to take that big piece of pie, I'd think, 'if you can tell that fellow to muster will power and faith, the least you can do is apply it to yourself."

Dr. Peale's weight now is down from a onetime 190 to 168, and he has lettuce and cottage cheese for lunch.

Sometimes criticized as presenting Christian faith and "positive thinking" as a key to worldly success, Dr. Peale said any such interpretation is a distortion.

"ANY MINISTER who presents faith in God as a way of material success is not being compatible with Christianity," he said. "It is the way of being successful as a person, of surmounting inner weakness and pride and sin."

Any improvement in your earthly status that results, he said, is strictly incidental. But if that is your motive, he added, you don't have Christian faith, anyhow.

Dr. Peale follows many of his own rules: Each morning when he rises, he has a 10-minute private devotional. And after all these years of speech making, he never stands up to talk without a silent prayer.

"AN INTRODUCTION," he said, "is the most terrifying moment known to man."

Before he or any of his children boards a plane, he follows a prescription he once gave a man who feared planes: Pray for the pilots, the stewardesses and the engines.

"It works," he said.

On his office wall, hangs this motto: "Trust in God and' live one day at a time."

Dr. Peale said he believes the great spiritual yearning now evident in this country will mean this generation will go down as a tremendous spiritual m estone in the history of the world and the Christian faith."

Wormy Protest

San Diego, Calif. (AP)—Suit in Superior Court to dissolve a worm business charged that one partner had short changed the other by five million worms. Howard W. Neal said the shortage was in worms provided for the venture at his ranch, where they were to produce millions of others for sale to avocado growers. Worms are supposed to aerate roots and help organic fertilization. Neal asked $1,500, the value he placed on the five million worms he said he didn't get.

Profits May Be Greater in 1955

New York, April 4 (AP)—Stock prices rose much faster than corporate earnings or dividends last year. But profits show good signs of increasing at a better rate this year. And some see in this a vindication of the big bull market in stocks which worried some economists and puzzled some senators.

The Associated Press average of the price of stocks of 60 leading and typical industrial corporations, utilities and railroads rose 43 per cent during 1954.

AT THE SAME time that stock values were making this striking rise, the combined earnings after taxes of these 60 companies rose 7.6 per cent. Their prospects for increasing the rate of this profit climb in the first half of 1955, however, are excellent.

The stock price index—in spite of some sharp breaks on the stock market in the first three months of 1955—further rose 2.3 per cent from January 1 to March 31 of this year.

During the first half of 1954, when business was slower and earnings declining, the AP stock price average, reflecting confidence instead of gloom, rose 17 per cent. In the second half, as business began to pick up, the stock price index rose 22 per cent.

There are 30 companies in the AP's industrial component of the stock averages. Although 14 of them turned in profit reports lower than for 1953, the combined total for the 30 was $3,578,827,917, a gain of 11 per cent.

THE STOCK price average of the 30 industrials did strikingly better, soaring 46 per cent in the year, and has climbed another 1.4 per cent since.

Railroads showed contrasting profit and price trends. Combined earnings of the 15 on the AP's index were $385,822,830, down 23.4 per cent from the previous year. Every one of the 15 did poorer than in 1953.

But the rail componet of the stock price average soared 55 per cent, most of the rise in the last half of the year. It has climbed 3 per cent since the first of this year.

AMONG REASONS for investors liking rails: Freight haulage began to pick up last fall. Profits began to recover. Rail freight is expected to increase 18 per cent in the April, May and June quarter over the first three months of this year and to be at least seven per cent higher than in the April, May and June period of 1954.

Utilities fluctuate the least, both in earnings and stock prices. Their rates, and therefore their profits, are regulated closely.

The 15 power and communications companies on the AP's utility index turned in combined earnings of $914,308,386, for a gain of 13.5 per cent over the previous year.

But the bull market caught up some of the utilities, too, and their stock price index rose 23 per cent last year, and 4.4 per cent since the first of this year.

ACCORDING to the experts, investors in stocks have been expressing confidence in the future of business, and looking beyond last year's profit reports, and even beyond just this year's prospects.

Many in the market, however, have been interested less in future earnings prospects than in the expectation that the bull market momentum would keep prices rising, so that they could get in and out and make a fast buck.

But for the long-term investor the cheering thing is that business activity quickened in the final months of 1954, went zooming through the first quarter of this year, and is pulling earnings up with it.

Dividend payments by all corporations showed a total gain of 5 per cent last year. And generous ones are anticipated this year.

The bulls boast that this is just what they had been forecasting.

FROM ENEMY TO ALLY

Germany, just 10 years ago our bitter enemy in the greatest war of all time, is now seriously on the way to becoming a firm ally of the Western powers in the long struggle against communism.

The last major obstacle to this development was removed when the French Senate, in an historic daybreak decision on March 27, voted to rearm the Bonn government of West Germany and admit the Germans to NATO, the keystone organization of Western defense.

A week earlier the German upper house had approved the Paris agreements embodying these developments. Thus the completion of French and German action leaves only endorsement by the U. S. Senate and by lesser NATO nations—all considered certainties—to give the pacts full legal force.

Assuming other countries proceed with reasonable dispatch, the creation of the projected West German army of 12 divisions—some 500,000 men—is still a good way off.

Both the French and the Germans will have many opportunities to delay and even subvert this rearmament. But the free world hopes that neither nation resorts to such efforts. The pacts have been solemnized by the nations most closely affected, and they are in honor bound to execute them with fair speed.

The crucial decisions taken by France and Germany do not, of course, end with Bonn's rearmament and admission to NATO. They provide for nearly complete political sovereignty for the Germans, and for a settlement of the controversial Saar issue that prescribes internationalization of the industrial region with heavy economic commitments to France.

Only time will show whether the Saar settlement has sown the seeds of future trouble between the two countries.

This is the season of the long form, the short form, problem form. All of which makes us wonder what is wrong with paying income tax on what is left after the tax is paid.

It's nice to save the merchandise stamps of varied hue—in green, red, yellow and blue. The catch, of course, is in getting the money to buy the things that bring them.

INTELLIGENT GIVING

One of the most detestable of all rackets worked against the public is the phony charity. Unscrupulous persons have found that it can be highly profitable to appeal to the generosity and the natural concern that good people have for those who are less fortunate.

The bad effects of these fake charities are many. They drain off money that is sorely needed by legitimate charities; they enrich evil men at the expense of good men. The unfavorable impression that is created by the exposure of fraudulent charities sometimes makes the public cynical and less willing to contribute to worthy causes.

At the second annual National Conference on Solicitations, held in Cleveland, a number of rules of guidance for donors were formulated. Contributors were advised to check the merits of each appeal; to resist and be suspicious of high pressure methods; to ask for identification from solicitors and report to the police those who refuse to provide it; to refuse charity appeals made over the telephone; to hold for a reasonable time, but not use, unordered merchandise; to demand proof that a donation is tax deductible; to seek advice from competent agencies such as the Chamber of Commerce or Better Business Bureau whenever there is reason to doubt the legitimacy of an appeal.

The person who really wishes to help those who need it must do more than hand out money. He must make certain that his gift is used for the purpose for which it was intended. Indiscriminate giving accomplishes nothing except to perpetuate vicious rackets.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

NOT SUCH A JOKE

The Yalta Documents were published in such a hurry that the deleted matter was crossed out but could be read. Most American newspapermen acknowledged the deletions by omitting the crossed-out matter. In Europe much of it has been published. Presumably when the official printed version appears, the crossed-out material will not be included.

During the session of February 10, Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill were discussing what could be done to make Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia happy. He apparently was hard to keep in line. Roosevelt's role in this conversation may be taken as an hilarious joke or as an off-the-record disclosure of an emotional attitude. These are the words on the record:

"The President replied that there was only one concession he thought he might offer and that was to give him (Ibn Saud) the six million Jews in the United States."

Roosevelt's relationship with members of the Jewish faith, both personally and politically, was extensive and intimate. One of his last and perhaps lasting political instructions, "Clear it with Sidney," meaning Sidney Hillman, referred to a labor leader of Jewish origin who was influential with Roosevelt during his Governorship and Presidency. One of his two principal speechwriters was Sam Rosenman; his Secretary of the Treasury was Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and his philosophic mentor was Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court.

Surely Roosevelt was not desirous of shipping them all to Saudi Arabia, or was he?

Stalin must have wondered what kind of a man was Roosevelt who admitted that he was not concerned about Poland but had to pacify the Americans of Polish descent who do have a large vote in certain big cities, particularly in Detroit, New York and Chicago. Stalin had no conception of what an American election means, he never having experienced one or anything like it. It must have struck Stalin as queer that so powerful a man as Roosevelt would be afraid of Jewish or Polish voters. Stalin would have known how to handle such people—he would have sent them to Yakutsk or some such place until they knew better and understood properly who was the boss man. Or he might have had them killed.

According to the "U. S. News and World Report," about 28 pages of military papers have been withheld, including some about Berlin, where it is to be remembered the United States got a zone without an entrance or an exit, so that we are stuck in the middle of Russian territory and we had to do the costly job which goes by the name of the Berlin Airlift.

Much more will come out than has already appeared. Some of the men who were present at Yalta will tell all, if only to establish their importance.

I find that on March 19, 1948, I wrote in the New York "Sun" concerning Yalta:

"Among a free people, those who participated in the errors must be held responsible for them. It may be pleasant for those who built reputations and made political profit by making mistakes to have us forget what they did and said when the going was smooth. However, now that their mistakes are being uncovered, they shout, 'Stop Thief!' We have to assume that those who supported Roosevelt's policy at Teheran and Yalta and Truman's policy at Potsdam, and such trivia as Dumbarton Oaks and Bretton Woods, are responsible for our present misfortunes. It will avail them nothing, for they face the facts of their own incompetence. There is no longer any coverup."

And I find, in that ancient report, the following pargaraph:

"On June 15, 1945, General Eisenhower told a press conference in Paris that so far as he is concerned, there is nothing to indicate that cooperation with the Russians is impossible. He said that 'peace lies with all the peoples of the world, not just for the moment with some political leaders.' I never quite knew how the people would produce peace unless they did it through their political leaders in control of their government. The fact is that they have not produced a peace, nor a peace treaty, nor a formula for peace, and they are all again talking about another war as though it were seasonal, like Easter or Christmas."

That paragraph might have been written last week or perhaps next week, so little has the situation changed.

That Body of Yours

NEW DRUG IN RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS

I try not to pass along information about new drugs to my readers until they have been used in a fairly large number of cases with good results. However, there is such a large percentage of our population suffering from rheumatoid arthritis that it seems only fair to mention any new drug which has given good results even if only in a small number of cases so far. Such a drug is metacortandralone (trade name Metacortalone) which was administered to seven patients who had failed to respond to other methods of treatment and who had had rheumatoid arthritis for periods of time ranging from two and a half years to 25 years.

The dosage ranged from 30 to 60 mg. daily in three doses, depending on the severity of the arthritis present. To make sure that the patient did not imagine their improvement, they were not told exactly when the new drug was begun but in spite of this every one noted improvement in his symptoms on the same day he began metacortandralone.

In case some of my readers wonder why a patient does not known just when a drug is introduced, this is done by means of giving pills for a few days which contain no active drug (placebos) and then substituting the new drug in the same shape and color of pill.

What were the results in these seven cases? "All reported some easing of joint pain, lessening in stiffness, and a distinct feeling of well-being that occurred four to six hours after the first dose of 10 mg. was taken. After 24 hours, the change was quite marked with several patients, who greeted the second day with unaccustomed cheerfulness and enthusiasm. The familiar morning stiffness was gone, joint pain was further reduced, and the ability to use the affected joints was decidedly increased."

What about the outward signs of rheumatoid activity? Thic came a little more gradually and reached its peak about two or three weeks after treatment was begun. In most cases, the increased warmth and redness of the parts disappeared in 24 hours. Swelling, tenderness and pain on motion lessened and the range of motion increased. Effusions (swellings of fluid) in joints completely disappeared in five of the six patients who had this sign and markedly decreased in the other one.

There were some side-effects, such as increased appetite, some mild cramps, rounding of the face, increased sweating, sleeplessness and restlessness, but none of these were serious and all disappeared as the dose of metacortandralone was reduced.

As mentioned above, this is just a preliminary study of a few cases but it does give encouragement to those who have already tried cortisone and hydrocortisone without benefit.

The two drugs mentioned above were given this trial by the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases and reported by Dr. J. J. Bunim and associates.

Unless There's a Miracle

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — Today's uneasy stirrings in the American union labor movement come from new issues that reflect changing conditions in the labor market.

Guaranteed annual wage—known as GAW for short. Automation. State "right to work" laws. New standards for minimum wage, jobless and disability insurance. Unemployment of over three million workers with employment at over 60 million—a strange footnote of inconsistency to record earnings and general prosperity all around.

Three million unemployed are a lot of people, but there are no accurate data on who they are, how many are new workers, how many are heads of families or how long they have been out of work. Congress has been asked for survey money to find the answers, but it has not been granted.

U. S. Department of Labor is now in the middle of a six to nine-months survey on automation—the new industrial giant of production by automatic machines. Today there is no sure information on how much if any unemployment it has caused.

BEFORE THE KOREAN WAR broke out, President Truman declared a peacetime America could support five million unemployed temporarily by changing jobs. That was when there were only 57 million employed.

Today unemployment is under five per cent of the work force instead of nearly 10, but there are complaints it is too high. Fearing that it may get worse, union leaders look for new answers, such as the guaranteed annual wage.

To regard GAW as a panacea for everyone does not make sense. It has worked all right in the soap industry, which can stockpile surpluses in slack periods. It is of no use in the retail trades which have to work six days a week or go broke. Whether it will work in the automobile industry or others which must shut down periodically to change models remains to be seen.

Labor experts are now inclined to look on GAW as more of a bargaining point in new wage negotiations than anything else. Initial agreement might be found in a compromise. One suggested is a few cents an hour raise, paid into a special fund to be administered by unions and employers for the benefit of those unemployed by seasonal, unavoidable layoffs.

GENERAL MOTORS AND Ford contracts expire at the end of May. The steel companies' contracts expire a month later. If the autoworkers get a guaranteed annual wage, steelworkers can hardly be expected to settle for less. There is a prospect that—even if there is no auto strike—there might be a steel strike later.

If GAW is not the answer, higher unemployment insurance, higher disability payments, higher minimum wage may be the substitute.

Here the battleground shifts to state legislatures. Union officials would prefer to have these things settled by act of Congress, setting national standards. The Eisenhower administration is committed to settling them at state levels. But if it is to carry out its free enterprise formula, it is recognized there must be higher unemployment and disability benefits.

One "satisfactory standard" of 50 per cent of gross pay for 26 weeks has been proposed. No state has that today. The highest is 44 per cent. The average is 33 per cent. Thirty states have been considering increases this year. Four have raised.

RAISING THE MINIMUM wage for workers in interstate commerce is now recognized as a national function. The Eisenhower administration recommends a raise from 75 to 90 cents an hour, while the unions lobby for $1.25.

The main reason the higher figure is rejected is that in the South, half the workers now get less than $1.25. Putting the minimum at that figure is said to be disruptive.

The battle over "right to work" laws is being fought largely in the South. Of the 18 states that have such laws, 12 are in the non-industrial South.

Whatever may be said for or against these laws, it is inconsistent to have a national policy and laws which recognize the right to collective bargaining, while state laws negate them. Two-thirds of the union contracts in effect today have union shop provisions. But the fight against them is relegated to the states.

La Porte du Boudious in Epinal, France, means "The Gate of the Liar." The liar in this case was the clock which never kept accurate time in all the 200 years the gate stood. They finally got tired of coping with the clock and demolished the tower and gate in 1840.

Move to Question Dulles Is Called Step in Proper Direction

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 4—Decision of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, by unanimous vote, to quiz Secretary of State Dulles about the release of the Yalta papers is a step in the right direction. Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who raised the point in the committee, is to be commended for doing so.

For there is a deeper issue than politics involved. It is whether records resulting from the money spent by American taxpayers to send their governmental representatives to international conferences and the papers or notes they write belong to the American people or whether they shall be sold for private profit in book publication afterward by the individuals participating in the conferences. There have been several books published about what happened at Yalta—two of them by former secretaries of state, and one by Churchill himself. Former President Truman probably will devote some chapters to the Potsdam conference in the book he now is writing from the papers he took along when he left the White House.

It has been properly asked, in the current controversy, why it was necessary for the Department of State to include in its release the offhand comments and personal remarks made at Yalta. But the answer is that if the remarks were "personal," they never should have been made in an international conference. As long as the 30 or more persons present, and especially those who took notes of any kind, put them down on paper and made them part of the American government's official records, they belong to the American people.

It has been quite customary heretofore for public officials and some presidents to take away from the White House what they call their "personal papers." But the stenographic time and the time used by the officials in preparing the documents in the first place were paid for by the taxpayers of the United States, and the documents belong to the people and not to the publishers of books.

If someone wanted to say something in a conference that he didn't want publicized later, he should have asked then and there that it be stricken from the record. But as long as it became a part of the record, it cannot be withheld justly from the American people ten years later. If "personal" comments are to be excluded from government records, someone is likely to suggest that they be kept out of the speeches in the "congressional record" and committee transcripts, too.

The question is further complicated by the unfortunate circumstance that a person who had access to all the memoranda and participated in the conference as a high official — Alger Hiss — now has been revealed through court proceedings to have been a part of the Communist apparatus in Washington.

No United States senator will be able to stand up before any constituency and successfully defend the supression of any facts concerning the Yalta papers because the conference itself has been tainted by the presence of a man in the ranks of the American delegation itself who was later revealed to have once given governmental notes to a Communist agent. Everything that Hiss put down on paper is important enought to be disclosed. He knew all that was said in the conference at Yalta and everything that was written in memoranda or confidential papers. Will any senator argue that the American people can't have, even ten years later, all the information—personal comments or anything else — to which Alger Hiss himself had access?

Now the matter of timing the release is something else. It can be argued that it wasn't opportune. But, after ten years of efforts to keep the data secret, it does seem as if the arguments of those who attack the release might mean that it never would be the right time to publish the documents.

On the subject of giving an advance copy to the New York Times, this has been described as a "leak." It is not unusual for long documents to be given to some publications in advance because they print them in full and need more time for mechanical work. The test is whether in this case the document was printed by one paper or by all at the same time. It actually was a simultaneous publication.

But there have been "leaks" in the past and, if the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is fair about it, there will be an inquiry into how personal and confidential remarks made by General MacArthur at his Wake island conference with President Truman were "leaked" to the New York Times by the Truman administration in 1951. Certain other "leaks" occurred during the 1952 campaign, when an important military document about the U. S. joint chiefs of staff deliberations on Korea in 1947 was declassified by President Truman himself and given to Senator Morse for use on the political stump without, of course, immediately informing the public or even the Defense Department at that time by whom and why the document was "declassified." The people, however, were entitled to the information then that Senator Morse gave them, just as they now are entitled to all the facts about the Yalta conference papers.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The International News quotes a member of a navy "interpreting team" who served at Yalta, in these words:

"The Reds always kept the tables loaded with wine, champagne and vodka. I saw more than one State Department official carried out after passing out.'

"It was one of the biggest drunken brawls I ever saw."

This opinion is supported by unwary descriptions of souse parties involving Americans who were sent to Russia to represent the interests of the United States. Some put the interests of Soviet Russia above our own. Others were fools who felt inferior in the presence of the Russians, who invariably were arrogant and patronizing. The Russians maintained this demeanor even when we were thrusting our treasure upon them and eagerly delivering into their empire millions of wretched human beings who believed our purpose was to liberate them from tyranny.

Elliott Roosevelt is the best witness. In his memoirs, this unique moocher writes as one who was in the deepest confidence of F. D. Roosevelt. He was invited to Stalin's grand binge for the Americans and British, with a gang of the best Soviet boozers checker-boarded among them to keep things steaming. But he loitered around with not too artful longing until Churchill saw him and Stalin bade him to the board. Jimmy Byrnes, not a drinker held steady on his course. Robert E. Sherwood, a playright, went into detail as to the toasts but not as to the alcoholic atmosphere in which the tosspots reeled while they cast whole nations and races of humanity like blue chips into a drunken gamble with Stalin sweeping the board.

Elliott may be a better writer than his clumsy way with words, of itself, could persuade us. He did get across an effect — the supercilious vanity of the pampered mama's-boy who found himself empowered as one of three mighty masters of mankind; the cruel cynicism of a faker who could reach the sentimental minds of millions of inferior Americans by patronizing them, and the utter absence of morals and religion in the American delegation. One can smell the alcohol in Elliott's narrative of the banquet, which was the most terrible debauch in its consequences to mankind and civilization in all history. Elliott's training as a child and the atmosphere of the family circle were not such as to cultivate an awareness that solemn piety and moral responsibility would have been ideal at Yalta. But his description will serve well the purpose of revealing to the human race in time to come the circumstances in which the tragedy occurred.

Sherwood says Stalin toasted Churchill, who toasted him back, then Roosevelt, who toasted him back. Later Stalin toasted the three "great powers" and, apparently with a straight face, said it was their duty to see that the alliance (which never was an alliance) should remain unified in peace. At that very time, the Russians were snarling at us in Moscow for more factories laid down on their shores. More thousands of miles of copper wire and cable for industrial expansion and diesels and other railroad equipment. The taxes of unborn generations of Americans are committed to pay for all this. And those taxes will be earned by toil.

There were countless other toasts. Some of the celebrants were so cockeyed that they didn't know to whom they were drinking. It was a colossal drunk.

Roosevelt himself gave a shindy with vodka and five kinds of wine. At home his wife usually restricted him to a ghastly mess made of gin, red syrup and orange juice, but Hugh Johnson related that on one night, when she was on the road, as she usually was, Roosevelt belted a stone crock of Dutch gin until he and the gin gave out together.

La Boca Grande wrote that she had been amused by the apprehension of a high American officer that Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, who accompanied her father to Yalta, should tie a bag on. She seemed to be overdromming on vodka. La Boca said that actually that was not vodka, which Anna was drinking. It was just water which of course, looks like vodka. Wasn't she the saucy one?

Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, the military attache in Moscow, described fantastic stews at which American officers and civilian emissaries got blind trying to compete with the Russians. One such drunk flew home in a plane "high as a kite" in more ways than one.

Yet, Sherwood wrote that the mood of Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins was "supreme exultation" as they left Yalta. Hopkins said: "We were absolutely certain that we had won the first great victory of the peace—all of us. The whole civilized human race. The Russians had proved that they could be reasonable and farseeing and there wasn't any doubt in the minds of the President or any of us that we could get along with them peacefully as far into the future as any of us could imagine."

Only Admiral Standley held out. He said the Russians were treacherous, lying double-crossers and said it again and again. He finally resigned as ambassador and came home because Roosevelt sent Willkie and Joe Davies to Moscow as special ambassadors to undermine him at the Kremlin. His book on this betrayal is out now or soon to appear.

FROM ENEMY TO ALLY

Germany, just 10 years ago our bitter enemy in the greatest war of all time, is now seriously on the way to becoming a firm ally of the Western powers in the long struggle against communism.

The last major obstacle to this development was removed when the French Senate, in an historic daybreak decision on March 27, voted to rearm the Bonn government of West Germany and admit the Germans to NATO, the keystone organization of Western defense.

A week earlier the German upper house had approved the Paris agreements embodying these developments. Thus the completion of French and German action leaves only endorsement by the U. S. Senate and by lesser NATO nations—all considered certainties—to give the pacts full legal force.

Assuming other countries proceed with reasonable dispatch, the creation of the projected West German army of 12 divisions—some 500,000 men—is still a good way off.

Both the French and the Germans will have many opportunities to delay and even subvert this rearmament. But the free world hopes that neither nation resorts to such efforts. The pacts have been solemnized by the nations most closely affected, and they are in honor bound to execute them with fair speed.

The crucial decisions taken by France and Germany do not, of course, end with Bonn's rearmament and admission to NATO. They provide for nearly complete political sovereignty for the Germans, and for a settlement of the controversial Saar issue that prescribes internationalization of the industrial region with heavy economic commitments to France.

Only time will show whether the Saar settlement has sown the seeds of future trouble between the two countries.

This is the season of the long form, the short form, problem form. All of which makes us wonder what is wrong with paying income tax on what is left after the tax is paid.

It's nice to save the merchandise stamps of varied hue—in green, red, yellow and blue. The catch, of course, is in getting the money to buy the things that bring them.

INTELLIGENT GIVING

One of the most detestable of all rackets worked against the public is the phony charity. Unscrupulous persons have found that it can be highly profitable to appeal to the generosity and the natural concern that good people have for those who are less fortunate.

The bad effects of these fake charities are many. They drain off money that is sorely needed by legitimate charities; they enrich evil men at the expense of good men. The unfavorable impression that is created by the exposure of fraudulent charities sometimes makes the public cynical and less willing to contribute to worthy causes.

At the second annual National Conference on Solicitations, held in Cleveland, a number of rules of guidance for donors were formulated. Contributors were advised to check the merits of each appeal; to resist and be suspicious of high pressure methods; to ask for identification from solicitors and report to the police those who refuse to provide it; to refuse charity appeals made over the telephone; to hold for a reasonable time, but not use, unordered merchandise; to demand proof that a donation is tax deductible; to seek advice from competent agencies such as the Chamber of Commerce or Better Business Bureau whenever there is reason to doubt the legitimacy of an appeal.

The person who really wishes to help those who need it must do more than hand out money. He must make certain that his gift is used for the purpose for which it was intended. Indiscriminate giving accomplishes nothing except to perpetuate vicious rackets.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

NOT SUCH A JOKE

The Yalta Documents were published in such a hurry that the deleted matter was crossed out but could be read. Most American newspapermen acknowledged the deletions by omitting the crossed-out matter. In Europe much of it has been published. Presumably when the official printed version appears, the crossed-out material will not be included.

During the session of February 10, Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill were discussing what could be done to make Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia happy. He apparently was hard to keep in line. Roosevelt's role in this conversation may be taken as an hilarious joke or as an off-the-record disclosure of an emotional attitude. These are the words on the record:

"The President replied that there was only one concession he thought he might offer and that was to give him (Ibn Saud) the six million Jews in the United States."

Roosevelt's relationship with members of the Jewish faith, both personally and politically, was extensive and intimate. One of his last and perhaps lasting political instructions, "Clear it with Sidney," meaning Sidney Hillman, referred to a labor leader of Jewish origin who was influential with Roosevelt during his Governorship and Presidency. One of his two principal speechwriters was Sam Rosenman; his Secretary of the Treasury was Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and his philosophic mentor was Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court.

Surely Roosevelt was not desirous of shipping them all to Saudi Arabia, or was he?

Stalin must have wondered what kind of a man was Roosevelt who admitted that he was not concerned about Poland but had to pacify the Americans of Polish descent who do have a large vote in certain big cities, particularly in Detroit, New York and Chicago. Stalin had no conception of what an American election means, he never having experienced one or anything like it. It must have struck Stalin as queer that so powerful a man as Roosevelt would be afraid of Jewish or Polish voters. Stalin would have known how to handle such people—he would have sent them to Yakutsk or some such place until they knew better and understood properly who was the boss man. Or he might have had them killed.

According to the "U. S. News and World Report," about 28 pages of military papers have been withheld, including some about Berlin, where it is to be remembered the United States got a zone without an entrance or an exit, so that we are stuck in the middle of Russian territory and we had to do the costly job which goes by the name of the Berlin Airlift.

Much more will come out than has already appeared. Some of the men who were present at Yalta will tell all, if only to establish their importance.

I find that on March 19, 1948, I wrote in the New York "Sun" concerning Yalta:

"Among a free people, those who participated in the errors must be held responsible for them. It may be pleasant for those who built reputations and made political profit by making mistakes to have us forget what they did and said when the going was smooth. However, now that their mistakes are being uncovered, they shout, 'Stop Thief!' We have to assume that those who supported Roosevelt's policy at Teheran and Yalta and Truman's policy at Potsdam, and such trivia as Dumbarton Oaks and Bretton Woods, are responsible for our present misfortunes. It will avail them nothing, for they face the facts of their own incompetence. There is no longer any coverup."

And I find, in that ancient report, the following pargaraph:

"On June 15, 1945, General Eisenhower told a press conference in Paris that so far as he is concerned, there is nothing to indicate that cooperation with the Russians is impossible. He said that 'peace lies with all the peoples of the world, not just for the moment with some political leaders.' I never quite knew how the people would produce peace unless they did it through their political leaders in control of their government. The fact is that they have not produced a peace, nor a peace treaty, nor a formula for peace, and they are all again talking about another war as though it were seasonal, like Easter or Christmas."

That paragraph might have been written last week or perhaps next week, so little has the situation changed.

That Body of Yours

NEW DRUG IN RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS

I try not to pass along information about new drugs to my readers until they have been used in a fairly large number of cases with good results. However, there is such a large percentage of our population suffering from rheumatoid arthritis that it seems only fair to mention any new drug which has given good results even if only in a small number of cases so far. Such a drug is metacortandralone (trade name Metacortalone) which was administered to seven patients who had failed to respond to other methods of treatment and who had had rheumatoid arthritis for periods of time ranging from two and a half years to 25 years.

The dosage ranged from 30 to 60 mg. daily in three doses, depending on the severity of the arthritis present. To make sure that the patient did not imagine their improvement, they were not told exactly when the new drug was begun but in spite of this every one noted improvement in his symptoms on the same day he began metacortandralone.

In case some of my readers wonder why a patient does not known just when a drug is introduced, this is done by means of giving pills for a few days which contain no active drug (placebos) and then substituting the new drug in the same shape and color of pill.

What were the results in these seven cases? "All reported some easing of joint pain, lessening in stiffness, and a distinct feeling of well-being that occurred four to six hours after the first dose of 10 mg. was taken. After 24 hours, the change was quite marked with several patients, who greeted the second day with unaccustomed cheerfulness and enthusiasm. The familiar morning stiffness was gone, joint pain was further reduced, and the ability to use the affected joints was decidedly increased."

What about the outward signs of rheumatoid activity? Thic came a little more gradually and reached its peak about two or three weeks after treatment was begun. In most cases, the increased warmth and redness of the parts disappeared in 24 hours. Swelling, tenderness and pain on motion lessened and the range of motion increased. Effusions (swellings of fluid) in joints completely disappeared in five of the six patients who had this sign and markedly decreased in the other one.

There were some side-effects, such as increased appetite, some mild cramps, rounding of the face, increased sweating, sleeplessness and restlessness, but none of these were serious and all disappeared as the dose of metacortandralone was reduced.

As mentioned above, this is just a preliminary study of a few cases but it does give encouragement to those who have already tried cortisone and hydrocortisone without benefit.

The two drugs mentioned above were given this trial by the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases and reported by Dr. J. J. Bunim and associates.

Unless There's a Miracle

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — Today's uneasy stirrings in the American union labor movement come from new issues that reflect changing conditions in the labor market.

Guaranteed annual wage—known as GAW for short. Automation. State "right to work" laws. New standards for minimum wage, jobless and disability insurance. Unemployment of over three million workers with employment at over 60 million—a strange footnote of inconsistency to record earnings and general prosperity all around.

Three million unemployed are a lot of people, but there are no accurate data on who they are, how many are new workers, how many are heads of families or how long they have been out of work. Congress has been asked for survey money to find the answers, but it has not been granted.

U. S. Department of Labor is now in the middle of a six to nine-months survey on automation—the new industrial giant of production by automatic machines. Today there is no sure information on how much if any unemployment it has caused.

BEFORE THE KOREAN WAR broke out, President Truman declared a peacetime America could support five million unemployed temporarily by changing jobs. That was when there were only 57 million employed.

Today unemployment is under five per cent of the work force instead of nearly 10, but there are complaints it is too high. Fearing that it may get worse, union leaders look for new answers, such as the guaranteed annual wage.

To regard GAW as a panacea for everyone does not make sense. It has worked all right in the soap industry, which can stockpile surpluses in slack periods. It is of no use in the retail trades which have to work six days a week or go broke. Whether it will work in the automobile industry or others which must shut down periodically to change models remains to be seen.

Labor experts are now inclined to look on GAW as more of a bargaining point in new wage negotiations than anything else. Initial agreement might be found in a compromise. One suggested is a few cents an hour raise, paid into a special fund to be administered by unions and employers for the benefit of those unemployed by seasonal, unavoidable layoffs.

GENERAL MOTORS AND Ford contracts expire at the end of May. The steel companies' contracts expire a month later. If the autoworkers get a guaranteed annual wage, steelworkers can hardly be expected to settle for less. There is a prospect that—even if there is no auto strike—there might be a steel strike later.

If GAW is not the answer, higher unemployment insurance, higher disability payments, higher minimum wage may be the substitute.

Here the battleground shifts to state legislatures. Union officials would prefer to have these things settled by act of Congress, setting national standards. The Eisenhower administration is committed to settling them at state levels. But if it is to carry out its free enterprise formula, it is recognized there must be higher unemployment and disability benefits.

One "satisfactory standard" of 50 per cent of gross pay for 26 weeks has been proposed. No state has that today. The highest is 44 per cent. The average is 33 per cent. Thirty states have been considering increases this year. Four have raised.

RAISING THE MINIMUM wage for workers in interstate commerce is now recognized as a national function. The Eisenhower administration recommends a raise from 75 to 90 cents an hour, while the unions lobby for $1.25.

The main reason the higher figure is rejected is that in the South, half the workers now get less than $1.25. Putting the minimum at that figure is said to be disruptive.

The battle over "right to work" laws is being fought largely in the South. Of the 18 states that have such laws, 12 are in the non-industrial South.

Whatever may be said for or against these laws, it is inconsistent to have a national policy and laws which recognize the right to collective bargaining, while state laws negate them. Two-thirds of the union contracts in effect today have union shop provisions. But the fight against them is relegated to the states.

Move to Question Dulles Is Called Step in Proper Direction

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 4—Decision of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, by unanimous vote, to quiz Secretary of State Dulles about the release of the Yalta papers is a step in the right direction. Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who raised the point in the committee, is to be commended for doing so.

For there is a deeper issue than politics involved. It is whether records resulting from the money spent by American taxpayers to send their governmental representatives to international conferences and the papers or notes they write belong to the American people or whether they shall be sold for private profit in book publication afterward by the individuals participating in the conferences. There have been several books published about what happened at Yalta—two of them by former secretaries of state, and one by Churchill himself. Former President Truman probably will devote some chapters to the Potsdam conference in the book he now is writing from the papers he took along when he left the White House.

It has been properly asked, in the current controversy, why it was necessary for the Department of State to include in its release the offhand comments and personal remarks made at Yalta. But the answer is that if the remarks were "personal," they never should have been made in an international conference. As long as the 30 or more persons present, and especially those who took notes of any kind, put them down on paper and made them part of the American government's official records, they belong to the American people.

It has been quite customary heretofore for public officials and some presidents to take away from the White House what they call their "personal papers." But the stenographic time and the time used by the officials in preparing the documents in the first place were paid for by the taxpayers of the United States, and the documents belong to the people and not to the publishers of books.

If someone wanted to say something in a conference that he didn't want publicized later, he should have asked then and there that it be stricken from the record. But as long as it became a part of the record, it cannot be withheld justly from the American people ten years later. If "personal" comments are to be excluded from government records, someone is likely to suggest that they be kept out of the speeches in the "congressional record" and committee transcripts, too.

The question is further complicated by the unfortunate circumstance that a person who had access to all the memoranda and participated in the conference as a high official — Alger Hiss — now has been revealed through court proceedings to have been a part of the Communist apparatus in Washington.

No United States senator will be able to stand up before any constituency and successfully defend the supression of any facts concerning the Yalta papers because the conference itself has been tainted by the presence of a man in the ranks of the American delegation itself who was later revealed to have once given governmental notes to a Communist agent. Everything that Hiss put down on paper is important enought to be disclosed. He knew all that was said in the conference at Yalta and everything that was written in memoranda or confidential papers. Will any senator argue that the American people can't have, even ten years later, all the information—personal comments or anything else — to which Alger Hiss himself had access?

Now the matter of timing the release is something else. It can be argued that it wasn't opportune. But, after ten years of efforts to keep the data secret, it does seem as if the arguments of those who attack the release might mean that it never would be the right time to publish the documents.

On the subject of giving an advance copy to the New York Times, this has been described as a "leak." It is not unusual for long documents to be given to some publications in advance because they print them in full and need more time for mechanical work. The test is whether in this case the document was printed by one paper or by all at the same time. It actually was a simultaneous publication.

But there have been "leaks" in the past and, if the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is fair about it, there will be an inquiry into how personal and confidential remarks made by General MacArthur at his Wake island conference with President Truman were "leaked" to the New York Times by the Truman administration in 1951. Certain other "leaks" occurred during the 1952 campaign, when an important military document about the U. S. joint chiefs of staff deliberations on Korea in 1947 was declassified by President Truman himself and given to Senator Morse for use on the political stump without, of course, immediately informing the public or even the Defense Department at that time by whom and why the document was "declassified." The people, however, were entitled to the information then that Senator Morse gave them, just as they now are entitled to all the facts about the Yalta conference papers.

The National Congress of American Indians has petitioned the Federal Government to grant some of the "technical assistance" we are giving the natives of Backwardarea in Asia and Mumbojumbo in Africa.

Mr. Hutton

These Indians have been the wards (God help them!) of federal politicians since the Civil War. Among the Navajos, they report less than one year of schooling. The infant death rate among the Indians in New Mexico and Utah is 139 a thousand, compared with a national rate of 29. Tuberculosis among our 400,000 Indians ranges as high as 2,000 per cent of the national average.

This is a national disagrace. Charity should begin at home. If these poor people lived in Africa or Asia, how our hearts would bleed for them! Spendthrift Stassen would have ten thousand experts on the spot "to keep them from going Communistic"!

While Stassen shovels out billions all over the globe, the original Americans crouch in their tepees, watching their children die! Will the Voice of America tell the world about them?

The Indians have been the victims of a hundred years of Federal Aid. White man, take warning; and send this to your Congressmen!

I ran into my good friend, Corti Boland, the other day in New York. This won't surprise anybody unless I explain that Boland lives in Toronto and had just flown north from Miami; and I live in Dallas and had flown to New York to take a look at the Vanderbilt Cup Tournament.

Corti was there for the same reason, so we swapped bridge hands, as bridge players always do when they meet.

Today's hand was one that Boland gave me. "A bit lucky," he admitted, "but the idea isn't bad, is it?"

Put yourself in Boland's place. You're playing the South hand at six spades and West leads the king of hearts. How do you avoid the loss of a heart and a diamond?

If you find this problem too easy, maybe you should take a trip to Toronto this weekend. You'll find the Canadian National Championships going on, and you can win yourself a championship or two and present your complaint to Boland at the same time.

Boland's solution to the problem, which he admitted was pretty easy stuff for an expert, was to win the ace of hearts, draw two rounds of trumps, cash all three top clubs and both top diamonds, and then give up a heart trick to West. Boland then crossed his fingers and hoped that West didn't have another diamond left.

As it happened, West had no more diamonds. He had to return a heart, and dummy ruffed while Boland discarded his losing diamond. He could then show his hand and claim the rest of the tricks, making his slam contract.

The play is deceptively simple. Declarer simply gives up a heart trick and hopes for the best. Don't forget, however, that South must pick the right time to give up the heart trick—after he has drawn trumps, and has cashed all the clubs and two top diamonds. Then there's no way for West to get out safely.

'THOROUGHLY BRAIN-WASHED' —A smiling Mrs. Adele Austin Rickett, of Yonkers, 35-year-old American graduate student described as a "thoroughly brain-washed victim of the Communists," is met at gangplank of Pine Tree Marine vessel in San Francisco, Calif. (Apr. 3) by former Fulbright student and friend of Ricketts family in China, Arthur Link. Link, of Vallejo, Calif., is a teaching assistant at University of California at Berkeley. (AP Wirephoto)

Woman Advised To Say Nothing

Redwood City, Calif., April 4 (AP)—A family friend says Mrs. Adele Austin Rickett, released prisoner of the Chinese Communists, is under "advisement" not to say anything.

Mrs. Rickett, described as "brain-washed" by Hong Kong observers, was greeted by her mother, Mrs. Harold Austin of Yonkers, N. Y., on her arrival by ship in San Francisco yesterday.

Mrs. Austin expects to fly to New York soon with her daughter. Mrs. Rickett's husband, Walter, a Fulbright scholar, still is imprisoned in Communist China.

Harry J. Strugnell, who took Mrs. Rickett and her mother to his home here, told reporters last night through a front door peephole:

"THERE WILL BE no statement from Mrs. Rickett. I say that under advisement, but I can't say where I got it from."

Strugnell brusquely turned away all requests for interviews with the 35-year-old ex-navy Wave. She was expelled as a spy from China Feb. 27 along with Malcolm Bersohn of New York. In Hong Kong, both professed "shame and remorse for our crimes against the Chinese people."

Bersohn arrived in New York March 23.

MRS. RICKETT countered all questions with wordless smiles.

A friend of China days, James Parsons, now an instructor in oriental languages at the University of California at Riverside, came here to greet Mrs. Rickett.

"She seemed very normal—just like herself to me," he said. "I didn't try to discuss politics with her. She said she hadn't seen Walter, her husband, since they were both arrested in 1951."

Belgium's King Baudouin arrived in this grieving industrial suburb of Liege this morning to visit the scene of the flaming disaster in the tiny theatre Rio and to talk to the victims' families.

By midmorning, officials announced that 38 of the 39 bodies had been identified. They were part of the matinee audience—mostly children — which was trapped in the theatre when the fire broke out. Many were trampled to death in the mad rush for the exits.

The victims' remains were placed in a nearby school gymnasium in front of stage sets painted for the last school entertainment.

'THOROUGHLY BRAIN-WASHED' —A smiling Mrs. Adele Austin Rickett, of Yonkers, 35-year-old American graduate student described as a "thoroughly brain-washed victim of the Communists," is met at gangplank of Pine Tree Marine vessel in San Francisco, Calif. (Apr. 3) by former Fulbright student and friend of Ricketts family in China, Arthur Link. Link, of Vallejo, Calif., is a teaching assistant at University of California at Berkeley. (AP Wirephoto)

Woman Advised To Say Nothing

Redwood City, Calif., April 4 (AP)—A family friend says Mrs. Adele Austin Rickett, released prisoner of the Chinese Communists, is under "advisement" not to say anything.

Mrs. Rickett, described as "brain-washed" by Hong Kong observers, was greeted by her mother, Mrs. Harold Austin of Yonkers, N. Y., on her arrival by ship in San Francisco yesterday.

Mrs. Austin expects to fly to New York soon with her daughter. Mrs. Rickett's husband, Walter, a Fulbright scholar, still is imprisoned in Communist China.

Harry J. Strugnell, who took Mrs. Rickett and her mother to his home here, told reporters last night through a front door peephole:

"THERE WILL BE no statement from Mrs. Rickett. I say that under advisement, but I can't say where I got it from."

Strugnell brusquely turned away all requests for interviews with the 35-year-old ex-navy Wave. She was expelled as a spy from China Feb. 27 along with Malcolm Bersohn of New York. In Hong Kong, both professed "shame and remorse for our crimes against the Chinese people."

Bersohn arrived in New York March 23.

MRS. RICKETT countered all questions with wordless smiles.

A friend of China days, James Parsons, now an instructor in oriental languages at the University of California at Riverside, came here to greet Mrs. Rickett.

"She seemed very normal—just like herself to me," he said. "I didn't try to discuss politics with her. She said she hadn't seen Walter, her husband, since they were both arrested in 1951."

Jake Loved a Band

By FRANK TRIPP

When I first met Jake Roseman I had no notion that some day I would prize above all else a cheap, gold-filled watch that his father once owned. For many years I didn't know who Jake really was.

To me he was just a jolly rounder diamond salesman operating out of our town. We became firm friends. Jake had a strange hobby for a gem peddler.

This fellow, whose pockets usually were lined with diamonds, loved a band. He had just a mite of musical ability, but he would follow a band as far as it marched, and bandmen liked him, as did everybody.

Arnold Hager and Frank Hauver, leaders of the two best bands in town, let Jake buy himself a uniform and a great big saxophone—and let him join their bands.

Arnold is gone, and Frank the other day wouldn't verify the rumor of 40 years ago that they snitched the reed out of Jake's saxophone—"dehorned" it—on important occasions. Neither did Frank deny it; he just laughed.

Anyway, being in the band was the biggest thing in Jake's life and if he could read it he would prize most the phrase of his obituary which proclaimed him an accomplished musician, for the man who wrote it thought he was.

THE YEARS PASSED, Jake became police commissioner, I a busier reporter with a family. We saw each other less often. Then one day he told me that his father was coming to town and he wanted me to meet him.

I met a kindly old gentleman past 80, dignified, astute mentally, but feeble. Upon hearing my name Mr. Roseman thrilled me with this story:

"I knew Tripps around here once," he said. "When I was a young man I traveled through this section with a pack on my back. I've trudged all of these roads on foot, selling cheap jewelry and watches.

"We had very little money and I would trade my wares for lodging in homes when I could. In the little railroad town of Breesport I always stayed with a family by your name."

Mr. Roseman had me on the ropes.

"Did you ever pay them with a set of Rogers 1850 plate for their table?" I asked him. "I probably did," he replied.

"DID YOU EVER pay them with a watch, a lady's hunting case, gold-filled watch?" I asked.

"Yes, that I well remember," the old gentleman beamed. "Ed Tripp was a railroad engineer and I sold him a watch for his jolly young wife very cheap, in return for a ride to Elmira. I remember because it is the only ride I ever had on a locomotive. Why, you must have known Ed Tripp!"

I went down for the count.

"Mr. Roseman," I confess I choked, "a few pieces of that Rogers plate still work in my kitchen. The watch is one of the most precious things I own. When I was a little boy my mother held it to my ear to let me hear it tick.

"The Breesport house where you stayed is the place where I was born. It stands there still—up Jackson Creek."

AND THAT is a little story of a pack peddler, who became an important diamond dealer and importer in New York's Maiden Lane—and of his son, who followed a band.

Jake Loved a Band

By FRANK TRIPP

When I first met Jake Roseman I had no notion that some day I would prize above all else a cheap, gold-filled watch that his father once owned. For many years I didn't know who Jake really was.

To me he was just a jolly rounder diamond salesman operating out of our town. We became firm friends. Jake had a strange hobby for a gem peddler.

This fellow, whose pockets usually were lined with diamonds, loved a band. He had just a mite of musical ability, but he would follow a band as far as it marched, and bandmen liked him, as did everybody.

Arnold Hager and Frank Hauver, leaders of the two best bands in town, let Jake buy himself a uniform and a great big saxophone—and let him join their bands.

Arnold is gone, and Frank the other day wouldn't verify the rumor of 40 years ago that they snitched the reed out of Jake's saxophone—"dehorned" it—on important occasions. Neither did Frank deny it; he just laughed.

Anyway, being in the band was the biggest thing in Jake's life and if he could read it he would prize most the phrase of his obituary which proclaimed him an accomplished musician, for the man who wrote it thought he was.

THE YEARS PASSED, Jake became police commissioner, I a busier reporter with a family. We saw each other less often. Then one day he told me that his father was coming to town and he wanted me to meet him.

I met a kindly old gentleman past 80, dignified, astute mentally, but feeble. Upon hearing my name Mr. Roseman thrilled me with this story:

"I knew Tripps around here once," he said. "When I was a young man I traveled through this section with a pack on my back. I've trudged all of these roads on foot, selling cheap jewelry and watches.

"We had very little money and I would trade my wares for lodging in homes when I could. In the little railroad town of Breesport I always stayed with a family by your name."

Mr. Roseman had me on the ropes.

"Did you ever pay them with a set of Rogers 1850 plate for their table?" I asked him. "I probably did," he replied.

"DID YOU EVER pay them with a watch, a lady's hunting case, gold-filled watch?" I asked.

"Yes, that I well remember," the old gentleman beamed. "Ed Tripp was a railroad engineer and I sold him a watch for his jolly young wife very cheap, in return for a ride to Elmira. I remember because it is the only ride I ever had on a locomotive. Why, you must have known Ed Tripp!"

I went down for the count.

"Mr. Roseman," I confess I choked, "a few pieces of that Rogers plate still work in my kitchen. The watch is one of the most precious things I own. When I was a little boy my mother held it to my ear to let me hear it tick.

"The Breesport house where you stayed is the place where I was born. It stands there still—up Jackson Creek."

AND THAT is a little story of a pack peddler, who became an important diamond dealer and importer in New York's Maiden Lane—and of his son, who followed a band.

Strong-Arm Police

Beaver Falls, Pa. (AP)—The proprietor of a store found the lock on the front door broken and the lock screws removed. He reported attempted burglary. Police listed the case as unsolved for several weeks until a mislaid report from night patrolman John Jackson turned up. Jackson reported he rattled the door and the "lock broke and the screws fell out." Jackson smiles when other members of the department refer to "the long arm of the law with a strong paw."

If a door key sticks in a lock, it can often be made to operate smoothly by rubbing it with a soft lead pencil.

BARGAIN HUNTERS

The directors of the five billion dollar National City Bank of New York have set aside $165,000,000 to buy in at $550 each the 300,000 outstanding shares of the First National Bank of New York. As recently as 10 weeks ago, these shares were available to investors at $425 each.

"Why," an inquiring reader asks, "didn't my broker call my attention to this underpriced value? I would have bought some if I had known about it."

Which brings up the question: "When is a stock underpriced?"

The December 31, 1954, financial statement of the First National Bank of New York indicated a book value of $477.42. With the stock selling $52 under book value, it aroused few investors' attention. Without the expressed desire of the National City Bank to take control of First National, it is doubtful if the stock would have moved.

But the National City directors were willing to pay $72 more a share than the financial statement showed. Consequently, here was a value that the public had under-appraised by $125 a share in January of 1955. The book value was understated and even the market price was far short of its true worth.

THE STOCK MARKET is shot through with such underpriced values. If like First National Bank, scores of corporations were to be merged with other enterprises or bought out by them, higher prices would be paid for equities than they are now bringing.

Bargain hunters should study the asset and liability columns of corporations whose common stocks are selling under book value. Assets are of two descriptions: current and capital. Cash, inventories, accounts receivable—these are the assets that bulk large in the current account. Real estate, equipment, machinery—these are the principal items in the capital account.

Debts, bills and accrued expenses are the leading items under liabilities. Now, when all of these are paid or otherwise taken care of by the assets, something may remain for the common stock. And there is where book value comes in.

It would be a very profitable study for the average investor to spend some time with an experienced auditor or certified public accoutant in learning how to read financial statements and to figure book value.

Such an exercise can be the key to bargain hunting. I put down here the names of eight well-known enterprises with their present book values. This is just a sample list. All are selling marketwise under these values. All carry risk and no guarantee is made about their investment quality.

It is my judgement that today many stocks with low book value selling at high prices and amply discounting future earnings should be avoided by most investors. On the other hand, many common stocks with substantial earning values behind them (like First National Bank of New York) should be bought. Solid book value properly appraised can be one of the keys to successful investing.

Strong-Arm Police

Beaver Falls, Pa. (AP)—The proprietor of a store found the lock on the front door broken and the lock screws removed. He reported attempted burglary. Police listed the case as unsolved for several weeks until a mislaid report from night patrolman John Jackson turned up. Jackson reported he rattled the door and the "lock broke and the screws fell out." Jackson smiles when other members of the department refer to "the long arm of the law with a strong paw."

If a door key sticks in a lock, it can often be made to operate smoothly by rubbing it with a soft lead pencil.

WAS DAUGHTER ELIGIBLE FOR PRIZE?

A letter today explains: "I gave a party for my sister who is to be married shortly. It was an informal gathering of all her friends and some relatives. To add a note of novelty to the party I wrote a number on the back of each plate (I used paper plates), and announced to the guests that there would be a drawing for a prize after all had finished eating. I asked my sixteen-year-old daughter to draw a number from a hat in which I had marked papers with corresponding numbers. As luck would have it, she draw her own number and was given the prize. Now I understand that I am being criticized for this by some of the guests who feel that as a member of the family, she should not have been allowed to keep the prize. What is your opinion?"

I am sorry to have to agree with some of your guests, but a daughter living in the house should not really have been included in the drawing. Had she been a married daughter living elsewhere and coming in for the party, that would be something else again.

Another Hat Question

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to another state with my husband to a convention. We will be staying in the same hotel where all of the activities will be held. I would like to know if it is necessary to put on a hat to go into the dining room.

Answer: If it is a restaurant where most people come in from the outside, it will be less conspicuous to wear a hat. But even so, it would be entirely proper for you to go without one if you prefer.

Correct Abbreviations

Dear Mrs. Post: What titles may be abbreviated under formal circumstances, such as on visiting cards, formal invitations, etc.?

Answer: Mr. and Mrs. are always abbreviated. Dr. in place of Doctor is used if his name is unusually long — otherwise the word written out is in better taste. "The Reverend" is definitely preferred by the fastifious, but "The Rev." is more generally used.

Would you like an attractive table for your next dinner party? Mrs. Post's booklet No. 504, describes table settings, decorations and many other features. Oil Heater Blamed For Bloomington Fire Eearly Today

The Bloomington Fire Department was summoned at 7:25 a. m. today to the home of Mrs. Selma Grafe off Route 32 in the village where an overheated oil heater had set fire to the building. The house was filled with smoke and Mrs. Grafe's mother, Mrs. Bertha Stoffel, was removed from the upper floor by firemen.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

Elwyn Relates Death Of Music Manager

Woodstock, April 4 — Robert Elwyn, motion picture director of this village, was the director of a motion picture, a documentary picture being filmed at the Princeton Laboratories when Carl McDonald, 55, manager of the Philadelphia Orchestra, collapsed and died Wednesday, while helping to direct a film on orchestra music. He lived in St. Davids, Pa., near Philadelphia. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Eleanor McDonald, two daughters and two stepsons.

Elwyn returned to his home here and told of the tragedy which occurred at the climax of the picture on which Elwyn had been working for the past 10 days. It was during a piano sequence, after McDonald had played a few bars of the music that he collapsed. Princeton police reported that McDonald had seen a serious accident on the New Jersey Turnpike which "visibly upset him." He was said to have been extremely nervous when he came into the Princeton Theatre, where the short film was being made. He was striken about 4:30 p. m. and was pronounced dead on arrival at Princeton Hospital.

The club also has purchased four identical 12-hour accumulative stop watches for rally timing to enable rally masters to determine penalties more accurately in the future. It was reported that not one protest was lodged with the events committee due to differences of opinion on time in the March Hare Rally when the watches were used for the first time. They are to be paid for by contributions from members individually and not from the club treasury.

Dash plaques for the first six place drivers and navigators in the March Hare Rally will be presented at the April 3 meeting of the club. Otto Lago, one-time European racing driver, was a guest entry in the March Hare Rally. Driving his Kaiser-Larrin Roadster to eighth place, Otto was navigated by his young son, Milan.

Oil Heater Blamed For Bloomington Fire Eearly Today

The Bloomington Fire Department was summoned at 7:25 a. m. today to the home of Mrs. Selma Grafe off Route 32 in the village where an overheated oil heater had set fire to the building. The house was filled with smoke and Mrs. Grafe's mother, Mrs. Bertha Stoffel, was removed from the upper floor by firemen.

Mrs. Grafe told firemen she had started the oil heater which quickly became overheated, setting fire to the ceiling and floor about the chimney and also spreading to the attic. Three pieces of equipment were sent by the Bloomington department and the damage was held to a minimum by the prompt arrival of the firemen. A booster line was laid but in order to keep damage to a minimum CO-2 extinguishers also were used once the main blaze was under control. The recall was sounded at 8:30 a. m.

New Taxes Forecast

Harrisburg, Pa., April 4 (AP)—Gov. George M. Leader is pretty certain that every Pennsylvanian will feel the pinch of new state taxes, but from all evidence he's still not sure just how much new revenue is needed to balance a 1½ billion dollar plus budget. In his inaugural speech Jan. 18 the governor, elected on a pledge to end the state sales tax, estimated 400 to 500 million dollars would have to be raised in new taxes for the two years beginning June 1.

Elwyn Relates Death Of Music Manager

Woodstock, April 4 — Robert Elwyn, motion picture director of this village, was the director of a motion picture, a documentary picture being filmed at the Princeton Laboratories when Carl McDonald, 55, manager of the Philadelphia Orchestra, collapsed and died Wednesday, while helping to direct a film on orchestra music. He lived in St. Davids, Pa., near Philadelphia. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Eleanor McDonald, two daughters and two stepsons.

Elwyn returned to his home here and told of the tragedy which occurred at the climax of the picture on which Elwyn had been working for the past 10 days. It was during a piano sequence, after McDonald had played a few bars of the music that he collapsed. Princeton police reported that McDonald had seen a serious accident on the New Jersey Turnpike which "visibly upset him." He was said to have been extremely nervous when he came into the Princeton Theatre, where the short film was being made. He was striken about 4:30 p. m. and was pronounced dead on arrival at Princeton Hospital.

The club also has purchased four identical 12-hour accumulative stop watches for rally timing to enable rally masters to determine penalties more accurately in the future. It was reported that not one protest was lodged with the events committee due to differences of opinion on time in the March Hare Rally when the watches were used for the first time. They are to be paid for by contributions from members individually and not from the club treasury.

Dash plaques for the first six place drivers and navigators in the March Hare Rally will be presented at the April 3 meeting of the club. Otto Lago, one-time European racing driver, was a guest entry in the March Hare Rally. Driving his Kaiser-Larrin Roadster to eighth place, Otto was navigated by his young son, Milan.

Since a number of requests concerning meeting dates have been received, a reminder is given that regular Woodstock Motor Club meetings are held on the first Sunday and third Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p. m. in the American Legion Hall, Woodstock.

Quarter Final Action Continues in Kingston Tournament

Monticello, Angels Win Saturday Games; Sienas, Burkoski Set

Quarter final action continues in the Kingston tournament tonight, with Ketterson Motors, the Newburgh city champions, opposing Otisville at 7:30 p. m.

In the 8:30 attraction, the tournament champions, Sickler's Siena Indians, meet the defending champion, Pine Plains Bombardiers.

The stage was set for an eventual showdown among Ketersons, Monticello and Sickler's in Saturday night's twinbill, when Harry's Angels outlasted Lincoln Center of Poughkeepsie, 93-83, and Monticello downed Valley Gardens, 72-67, in a low-scoring duel.

RONNIE SCHEFFEL was unable to show as expected but his brother—Bud—contributed 8 vital points for the Angels when the Lincolns were pressing in the final period. Big Bill Kleine also helped with eight.

The Angels led 48-39 at the half and 68-64 going in. Skip Brodhead was the scoring leader with 17 points. John Godwin played a brilliant first half and contributed 15 points before fouling out early in the third period. Champ Holstein scored 16 points with a late surge. Bill Maroney led Lincolns with 17.

A TOTAL OF 63 FOULS slowed up the contest, with seven players going out with five personals and three others finishing with four.

With Wally McCarville, of Iona College, dominating the boards and scoring steadily, Valley Gardens was impressive in the early going against Monticello. When McCarville exited early in the fourth quarter, the Gardens' number was up.

McCarville canned 27 points and Rivan Krieger had 22 for the Gardens but Monticello had better all-round balance. Bob Laskowitz hooped 19 for the Vets.

Hurricane Jackson Set For Return to TV Lanes

The Associated Press

Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, makes another stop on the comeback road tonight when he fights Archie McBride of Trenton, N. J., at St. Nicholas Arena in a 10-round bout.

This will be Tommy's first television appearance (Du Mont) since his meteoric career was halted so abruptly by Nino Valdes last year. Niino stopped him in two rounds and the Hurricane blew to parts unknown.

But he's only 24 years of age, and he has plenty of stamina. Since he was dropped three times in the second round by Valdes, Tommy has scored four knockouts in his last four fights.

His manager, Lippy Breitbard, reports Tommy has shortened and sharpened his punching and improved his boxing style.

GENE FULLMER of West Jordan, Utah, brings his 29-bout defeatless streak to Eastern Parkway and the ABC TV network when he faces Gil Turner in a 10 tonight.

Fullmer is the favorite, but at a slight 13-10. At his best, he can punch faster, and has quicker reflexes and bouncier legs than Turner.

NO WEDNESDAY TV bout this week. . . . Ever hear of two fighters training in the snow? Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler and Kenny Davis of Los Angeles, who meet in a non-title in Butte, Mont., tomorrow, have been doing their roadwork while the snow comes down. . . . Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore undergoes a physical today by the California State Athletic Commission in an attempt to regain a license in the state. He's barred because of a heart ailment.

THIS WEEK'S FRIDAY TV (NBC) fight will come from St. Louis where Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Yonkers is the choice over George Johnson of Trenton, N. J., in a middleweight 10. . . . New Jersey Boxing Commissioner Joseph H. Walker said he has uncovered "three or four very important details" concerning the bout in which Bryan Thompson suffered severe brain damage. Walker said he wanted to discuss them with Thompson before releasing them. Thompson is in "very critical" condition in a hospital as a result of the bout last Tuesday in which he was knocked out in the second round of a scheduled six by Jerry Luedde.

TONY DE MARCO, the new welterweight champion, has a date to fight Carmen Basilio for the title in Syracuse, N. Y., on April 29, but it probably will be postponed at least a week. Tony has a bruised right hand, a cut over his left eye and a nick under his right eye as a result of lifting the title from Johnny Saxton Friday in Boston. Saxton, incidentally, will get first crack at the winner.

Set Meeting For Softball

City Softball League managers and officials will hold an organizational meeting on Monday, April 11, at the downtown Recreation Center. All persons interested in a league franchise are invited.

SPORTS

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

Kingston keglerettes invaded the state women's tournament at Albany over the weekend with a solid background of achievement.

Six places in the official record book you'll find Kingston names, with Rose Schatzel contributing three state titles.

The Queen is the only woman ever to capture two successive New York state all-events crowns, with 1728 in 1951 and 1710 in 1952. The all-time high of 1849 was set by Helen Greene of Buffalo in 1949.

Elizabeth Egan, then a C kegler, copped a state title with a 514 slam in singles in 1950, the year the tournament was held at the Bowlatorium. Evelyn Dolson and Mathilda Bruck carried off the Class B doubles with 1052 in the same tourney.

Sealtest of Kingston was the 1951 Class B team champion with a 2486 series. In 1952, Mrs. Schatzel picked up the Class A singles crown with 616.

• Jake Chichelsky's Corner:

Hottest team in the City Minor is Mazzucca's Essos with 15 straight wins. They are tied with Cities Service for first place as this is being typed. . . . Williams Lake keglers needed one win Saturday to clinch the Tavern Association title. . . . Baker-Schatzel Paints of the Junior Major have won 14 of their last 15. . . . Forst Packers will be on the same squad with Stroh's Behemians of Detroit in the ABC at Fort Wayne. . . . Jerry Kaplan has become a proficient match game kegler. Don't let it go to your head, Jerry. . . . Joan Krueger has developed into the best young keglerette of the season. Our advice to Joan is to keep up the good bowling and don't worry when your name doesn't hit the headlines like you think it should. . . . Dick Howard making an excellent comeback since his recent marriage. . . . Freddie Rice throwing a great ball and proving that there is still plenty of power in the old hook. With the ABC series tournament now in progress, can you name what team rolled the highest series?

• The Eleventh Frame:

We don't ordinarily disagree with Jake's all-star designations, but his selection of Wagner-Adler state champions as the best bowling team ever to appear in Kingston finds no support in this corner. There have been several teams the equal of Wagner-Adler in exhibitions here over the years. . . . Joe Falcaro's Bowlers Journal squad which captured the national team match game title was easily the No. 1 aggregation ever to show in Kingston, in our opinion.

Besides Chesty Joe Falcaro, the Journal team, which rolled more than 3200 at the Central Recs, had such renowned performers as Chester Arnhorst, Hooskie Miller, Sid Baum, Eddie Botten and Junie McMahon, who was then just starting his spectacular climb to bowling fame. In a showdown match, no squad that ever visited Kingston could take this aggregation.

There were other great ones over the years, among them Tony Sparando's Pabst Blue Ribbons, George Washington Hotel, Brunswick Red Crowns, Fisher Body of Tarrytown, Syracuse Marksons, Faber Cement Block and a host of others. But Chesty Joe's gang was tops.

• Of National Note:

Manhattan Bowling Balls of Kingston make their state tournament bid on May 8th. . . . ABC annual report just off the press shows Pete Kozloski of Plains, Pa., led the nation last season with five sanctioned 300s. . . . Most frustrated was Steve Nagy of Cleveland with a pair of 299s. Wally Gerken, the great Newburgh veteran, is winding up one of his best seasons in years. . . . Old combination of Nick Leoce, Tony Mack, Pat Tarsio and Al Crisci still dominates Hill City bowling scene. . . . Kingston Bowling Association hasn't had much luck with its presidential nominee in recent years, but Mannie Calao looks like shoo-in on regular slate this time around. . . . KBA elections are scheduled April 17.

McMahon Hits 602 In the ABC

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 4 (AP) —The 52nd annual American Bowling Congress tournament's team standings were reshuffled last night by three pin heavy scores.

A Youngstown, Ohio, team, the Golden Age Beverages, rolled up a 2968 to take over third place. Andrew Hudoba's 641 total, including games of 234 and 237, paced the Ohio quintet.

Covino's Restaurant of Port Chester, N. Y., moved into the fifth slot with a 2954 output, highlighted by Pat Santora's fine 667 series. Santora thrilled the largest crowd of the tournament, around 2800 persons, by knocking off eight consecutive strikes in his opening game. He finished with a 266 game.

JUNIE McMAHON and his George London Bowling Shirts team grabbed the 10th spot in the standings. McMahon, who last night was awarded a gold watch for his election to bowling's "Hall of Fame," and his mates posted a 2954. While McMahon could knock off only a 602, teammate Stan Niemiec, carded a 625 for the team which carries a 1025 average in Lodi, N. J.

Since yesterday's action was limited strictly to team rolling, the leaders in the other divisions remained unchanged. Eddie Gerzine of Milwaukee tops the singles with 738 and the all events with 1938.

Elmira, April 4 (AP)—Charles Ehren of New York is the new president of the New York State Men's Bowling Association.

The association, after electing officers Saturday, decided to hold next year's state tourney in New York city. Dates will be determined later.

George Obenauer of Buffalo was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and John N. Goldsmith of New York, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Other newly elected officers were: Joseph Minella of Rochester, first vice president; Burt Rhea of Poughkeepsie, second vice president; Dave Green of Rome, third vice president; and James Burns of Elmira, fourth vice president.

Red Wings Take Lead

Detroit, April 4 (AP)—"It was just a hunch—but it sure paid off.'

Marv Pavelich, veteran forward of the Detroit Red Wings, was talking of his dramatic, unassisted goal which led to a 4-2 victory over the Montreal Canadiens last night in the opening game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final hockey playoffs.

Pavelich broke a 2-2 tie with less than three minutes to play when he stole the puck and skated more than half the ice to beat goalie Jacques Plante with a hard 12-foot shot. And he did it while the Red Wings were playing one man short.

GORDIE HOWE was in the penalty box when Pavelich, a tireless hustler, intercepted a power-play pass by defenseman Doug Harvey of the Canadiens. He cleared the puck out to center ice, picked it up and raced in all alone on Plante, beating him with a high drive into the top of the net.

Pavelich's goal was the crusher as the Red Wings scored three times in the final seven minutes to pull the game out of the fire.

Big Stasiuk tied the scored 2-2 at 13.05 of the third period, slapping in a quick 10-footer. Pavelich scored his big goal at 17:07 Then Capt. Ted Lindsay nailed down the victory with 18 seconds left when he rifled the puck into an open net after the Canadiens had lifted Plante to use six attackers.

Floyd Curry scored both Montreal goals, but his one-man efforts weren't enough against Detroit's strong attack.

Quarter Final Action Continues in Kingston Tournament

Monticello, Angels Win Saturday Games; Sienas, Burkoski Set

Quarter final action continues in the Kingston tournament tonight, with Ketterson Motors, the Newburgh city champions, opposing Otisville at 7:30 p. m.

In the 8:30 attraction, the tournament champions, Sickler's Siena Indians, meet the defending champion, Pine Plains Bombardiers.

The stage was set for an eventual showdown among Ketterson, Monticello and Sickler's in Saturday night's twinbill, when Harry's Angels outlasted Lincoln Center of Poughkeepsie, 93-83, and Monticello downed Valley Gardens, 72-67, in a low-scoring duel.

RONNIE SCHEFFEL was unable to show as expected but his brother—Bud—contributed 8 vital points for the Angels when the Lincolns were pressing in the final period. Big Bill Kleine also helped with eight.

The Angels led 48-39 at the half and 68-64 going in. Skip Brodhead was the scoring leader with 17 points. John Godwin played a brilliant first half and contributed 15 points before fouling out early in the third period. Champ Holstein scored 16 points with a late surge. Bill Maroney led Lincolns with 17.

A TOTAL OF 63 FOULS slowed up the contest, with seven players going out with five personals and three others finishing with four.

With Wally McCarville, of Iona College, dominating the boards and scoring steadily, Valley Gardens was impressive in the early going against Monticello. When McCarville exited early in the fourth quarter, the Gardens' number was up.

McCarville canned 27 points and Rivan Krieger had 22 for the Gardens but Monticello had better all-round balance. Bob Laskowitz hooped 19 for the Vets.

Hurricane Jackson Set For Return to TV Lanes

The Associated Press

Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, makes another stop on the comeback road tonight when he fights Archie McBride of Trenton, N. J., at St. Nicholas Arena in a 10-round bout.

This will be Tommy's first television appearance (Du Mont) since his meteoric career was halted so abruptly by Nino Valdes last year. Niino stopped him in two rounds and the Hurricane blew to parts unknown.

But he's only 24 years of age, and he has plenty of stamina. Since he was dropped three times in the second round by Valdes, Tommy has scored four knockouts in his last four fights.

His manager, Lippy Breitbard, reports Tommy has shortened and sharpened his punching and improved his boxing style.

GENE FULLMER of West Jordan, Utah, brings his 29-bout defeatless streak to Eastern Parkway and the ABC TV network when he faces Gil Turner in a 10 tonight.

Fullmer is the favorite, but at a slight 13-10. At his best, he can punch faster, and has quicker reflexes and bouncier legs than Turner.

NO WEDNESDAY TV bout this week. . . . Ever hear of two fighters training in the snow? Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler and Kenny Davis of Los Angeles, who meet in a non-title in Butte, Mont., tomorrow, have been doing their roadwork while the snow comes down. . . . Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore undergoes a physical today by the California State Athletic Commission in an attempt to regain a license in the state. He's barred because of a heart ailment.

THIS WEEK'S FRIDAY TV (NBC) fight will come from St. Louis where Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Yonkers is the choice over George Johnson of Trenton, N. J., in a middleweight 10. . . . New Jersey Boxing Commissioner Joseph H. Walker said he has uncovered "three or four very important details" concerning the bout in which Bryan Thompson suffered severe brain damage. Walker said he wanted to discuss them with Thompson before releasing them. Thompson is in "very critical" condition in a hospital as a result of the bout last Tuesday in which he was knocked out in the second round of a scheduled six by Jerry Luedde.

TONY DE MARCO, the new welterweight champion, has a date to fight Carmen Basilio for the title in Syracuse, N. Y., on April 29, but it probably will be postponed at least a week. Tony has a bruised right hand, a cut over his left eye and a nick under his right eye as a result of lifting the title from Johnny Saxton Friday in Boston. Saxton, incidentally, will get first crack at the winner.

Set Meeting For Softball

City Softball League managers and officials will hold an organizational meeting on Monday, April 11, at the downtown Recreation Center. All persons interested in a league franchise are invited.

Seattle, Wash. — Ralph Miller, Hanover, N. H. and the U. S. Army, won the National Giant Slalom in 2:10, and Jannette Burr Bray, Seattle won the women's national in 1:37.

Kingston keglerettes invaded the state women's tournament at Albany over the weekend with a solid background of achievement.

Six places in the official record book you'll find Kingston names, with Rose Schatzel contributing three state titles.

The Queen is the only woman ever to capture two successive New York state all-events crowns, with 1728 in 1951 and 1710 in 1952. The all-time high of 1849 was set by Helen Greene of Buffalo in 1949.

Elizabeth Egan, then a C kegler, copped a state title with a 514 slam in singles in 1950, the year the tournament was held at the Bowlatorium. Evelyn Dolson and Mathilda Bruck carried off the Class B doubles with 1052 in the same tourney.

Sealtest of Kingston was the 1951 Class B team champion with a 2486 series. In 1952, Mrs. Schatzel picked up the Class A singles crown with 616.

• Jake Chichelsky's Corner:

Hottest team in the City Minor is Mazzucca's Essos with 15 straight wins. They are tied with Cities Service for first place as this is being typed. . . . Williams Lake keglers needed one win Saturday to clinch the Tavern Association title. . . . Baker-Schatzel Paints of the Junior Major have won 14 of their last 15. . . . Forst Packers will be on the same squad with Stroh's Behemians of Detroit in the ABC at Fort Wayne. . . . Jerry Kaplan has become a proficient match game kegler. Don't let it go to your head, Jerry. . . . Joan Krueger has developed into the best young keglerette of the season. Our advice to Joan is to keep up the good bowling and don't worry when your name doesn't hit the headlines like you think it should. . . . Dick Howard making an excellent comeback since his recent marriage. . . . Freddie Rice throwing a great ball and proving that there is still plenty of power in the old hook. With the ABC series tournament now in progress, can you name what team rolled the highest series?

• The Eleventh Frame:

We don't ordinarily disagree with Jake's all-star designations, but his selection of Wagner-Adler state champions as the best bowling team ever to appear in Kingston finds no support in this corner. There have been several teams the equal of Wagner-Adler in exhibitions here over the years. . . . Joe Falcaro's Bowlers Journal squad which captured the national team match game title was easily the No. 1 aggregation ever to show in Kingston, in our opinion.

Besides Chesty Joe Falcaro, the Journal team, which rolled more than 3200 at the Central Recs, had such renowned performers as Chester Arnhorst, Hooskie Miller, Sid Baum, Eddie Botten and Junie McMahon, who was then just starting his spectacular climb to bowling fame. In a showdown match, no squad that ever visited Kingston could take this aggregation.

There were other great ones over the years, among them Tony Sparando's Pabst Blue Ribbons, George Washington Hotel, Brunswick Red Crowns, Fisher Body of Tarrytown, Syracuse Marksons, Faber Cement Block and a host of others. But Chesty Joe's gang was tops.

• Of National Note:

Manhattan Bowling Balls of Kingston make their state tournament bid on May 8th. . . . ABC annual report just off the press shows Pete Kozloski of Plains, Pa., led the nation last season with five sanctioned 300s. . . . Most frustrated was Steve Nagy of Cleveland with a pair of 299s. Wally Gerken, the great Newburgh veteran, is winding up one of his best seasons in years. . . . Old combination of Nick Leoce, Tony Mack, Pat Tarsio and Al Crisci still dominates Hill City bowling scene. . . . Kingston Bowling Association hasn't had much luck with its presidential nominee in recent years, but Mannie Calao looks like shoo-in on regular slate this time around. . . . KBA elections are scheduled April 17.

New Pilots Off to Slow Start in Spring Action

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
(The Associated Press)

With the start of the major league baseball season just a week away, this is as good a time as any to check up on the six new American League managers in the spring training games.

Chuck Dressen of the Washington Senators and Mike Higgins of the Boston Red Sox have had the most success. The Senators have won 11 and lost six to pace the American League's grapefruit and cactus standings, while Boston's 12-8 record is good for third place.

But the four other newcomers—Marty Marion of the Chicago White Sox, Paul Richards of the Baltimore Orioles, Bucky Harris of the Detroit Tigers and Lou Boudreau of the Kansas City A's—haven't been as successful.

THEIR FOUR TEAMS are bunched in the second division with just about identical marks. The White Sox, the Orioles and the Tigers each have 8-12 won-lost slates. The A's, in the basement, are 8-13.

All six skippers have reason to be pleased today, however, after the performances of several of their key players yesterday.

Shortstop, which has been a problem for Washington, may have been clinched by rookie Johnny Kline after he went four-for-four as the Nats edged the Cincinnati Redlegs 6-4. Kline singled to open the bottom of the ninth and rode home on Eddie Yost's game-winning home run. It was the Senators' fourth straight over Cincinnati.

NORM ZAUCHIN, fighting for the Red Sox first base job, walloped a two-run homer in the sixth inning off the Philadelphia Phils' ace, Robin Roberts, to give the Red Sox a 4-2 victory. Sauchin also figured in Boston's other two runs, sandwiching a single between doubles by Sammy White and Ted Lepcio in the second frame

The White Sox bowed to the St. Louis Cards 12-7, but Manager Marion continued to gloat over the power-hitting of Walt Dropo. The big first sacker socked his third home run in four days and teammate Bob Nieman also hit for the circuit. Rip Repulski of the Cards banged a grand-slam home run in the first frame.

Baltimore's pitching fell apart in the ninth inning when Pittsburgh scored six runs to pull out an 11-8 verdict, but the Orioles gained some solace from the hitting of Gus Triandos and the pitching of Jim McDonald, both acquired from the Yanks. Triandos, expected to plug the first base gap, poled a home run with the bases loaded, and McDonald hurled seven creditable innings. Jack Shepard's grand-slam four-bagger in the ninth inning climaxed the Pirates' outburst.

DETROIT SPLIT A double-header with Atlanta of the Southern Association, losing the opener 5-4, but taking the six-inning nightcap 8-0. Ned Garver continued to sparkle on the mound for the Tigers, pitching a two-hitter in the second game. Manager Harris has chosen the veteran righthander to open the season against Kansas City, Tuesday, April 12.

The A's and Manager Boudreau got some good news when Bobby Shantz turned in his most impressive stint of the training season as Kansas City downed Savannah of the Sally League 8-1. The crafty southpaw, plagued by arm trouble the past two years, gave up one run and five hits in five innings and his control showed sharp improvement over previous appearances. Vic Power hit two homers to lead the A's assault and Gus Zernial and Joe Astroth also walloped circuit clouts.

ELSEWHERE, Harry Chiti's pair of homers paced the Chicago Cubs to a 12-3 triumph over San Antonio of the Texas League, Tom Morgan went the route as the New York Yankees trimmed Memphis of the Southern Association 13-1, Gene Conley worked eight innings as the Milwaukee Braves licked the Brooklyn Dodgers 5-1 and the New York Giants rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to turn back the Cleveland Indians 7-5.

Fort Wayne Scores First Victory in NBA Playoffs

Indianapolis, April 4 (AP)—Home floor magic applies 120 miles away from home, as Fort Wayne's first national basketball playoff victory attests.

The Pistons beat Syracuse, 96-89 last night on a floor shipped here from the Fort Wayne Coliseum—scene now of the American Bowling Congress tourney.

Syracuse, playing at home, had won the two times the clubs met previously in the best-of-seven championship series. It was the Piston's 25th straight loss at Syracuse.

Both teams started hot last night, each hitting its first 9 shots from the field. In the excitement, a fan tossed a chair towards an official. Action was stopped temporarily while the fan was reprimanded. He was allowed to remain.

THE TEAMS PLAYED on even terms through the first half, which ended at 43-all. Fort Wayne then began edging ahead, chiefly through the efforts of Mel Hutchins, and led 69-57 as the third period ended. Hutchins was high man for the night with 23.

The Pistons ran the lead to 74-59 by early in the final period, but Bill Kenville responded with 9 of his 11 points to keep the Nats in the running. Spearheaded by Kenville but with substantial help from Dolph Schayes and Red Rocha, Syracuse moved to within three points, 87-84, with five minutes remaining.

Larry Foust and Andy Phillip then hit from the field to keep Fort Wayne in control.

Schayes and Rocha, each with 21, were high for Syracuse.

A few days after being selected as Best in Show in the annual Florida Breeders baby horse show at Hialeah paddock, the filly Mono Lady won the first juvenile race of the winter at this track.

(NEA Shooting Editor)

It's a fine day as this is written, one of those almost days of spring when it even smells as if the crocusses should be blooming—just the kind of day when a woodchuck might become restless and poke up out of his hole to look at the world.

And if he did come out, he wouldn't emerge from the same den which serves as his summer apartment. Unable to dash down to Miami Beach for the cold months, Mr. Whistlepig does the next best thing—he sleeps all winter in a deep and comfortable hibernation den, carefully spotted on a slope with a southern exposure where sun and good drainage will keep him as warm and dry as possible. A special den, for winter snoozing only.

Very shortly now, however, he'll be coming up for short excursions in the tender new grass, excursions that in mid-April will become frenzied scuttlings about the fields in search of two things, another chuck of the opposite or gentler sex with whom to celebrate the coming of spring with mating activities, and some proper diggings for the summer.

This summer home of a family of woodchucks is no haphazard shanty. Since any intelligent marmot has long since learned the folly of commuting, it will be dug in or very near a food supply—which is to say a field of alfalfa or fat clover if possible.

It won't be dug in sand, since that means a collapsible roof and chucks are more interested in excavation than carpentry. It will have a prominent front door, a mound of dirt and stones form the entrance tunnel which marks his residence as clearly as any painted signs. And it will have several back doors.

They may be 20 or 30 yards from that imposing front entrance, even further in rocky soils where natural crevices can be incorporated into the tunnel maze. There may be one exit—and no dirt around this one—carefully opened in the corner of a stone wall or in a hedgerow tangle. Very handy in case of fire—which in marmot terminology means an exploring dog, dangerous visitations from farm lads or chuck hunters—since it serves both as escape hatch and concealed observation point.

There may be a half a dozen other exits scattered out in the feeding area. No betraying dirt pile around them, either, since these openings are usually made from below, and are merely quick ways of getting at the clover delicatessen without dangerous exposure.

These feed holes are apt to be small, with mouths that drop straight down so that if the alfalfa-chomping chuck hears a dog snuffling on his trail or spots a rifleman closing the pasture gate he can disappear forthwith, or even forthwither, diving to safety like a fireman heading for the brass pole.

A chuck asleep in the late August sun is the laziest looking character in the world, but by then he has a right to rest, since his multi-tunneled summer home at once a shelter and a subway transit system, is at its complicated best. Nothing to do between then and mid-October but eat himself hog fat—and dig a separate sleeping den for the coming winter.

Take the word of the many thousands who have been switching to the beautiful Chrysler Windsor Deluxe V-8—

There's an excitement about this stunning new car that's contagious. You'll feel it at the wheel. Your passengers will feel it. And those who watch you flash by will feel it, too!

You'll be absolute master of eighteen feet of sleek and stunning new motorcar styling. And it's a lot more than just a new look . . . it's a thrillingly different look from anything else you'll see, no matter where you drive.

By measurement, Chrysler is inches lower than other big cars. It's longer than ever—a breathtaking sweep of tailored steel that, even at rest, suggests pure motion.

You sit behind the only windshield that "wraps around" both top AND bottom to accent the car's look of forward motion. And it's this sweptback design that makes Chrysler's Super-Scenic Windshield the safest to see out of!

The wonders never cease, especially when you start driving. In the Windsor Deluxe with its brilliant new Spitfire V-8 engine, or the 250 hp New Yorker Deluxe . . . and with PowerFlite automatic drive . . . you get a head start that's for keeps. And no other car in the world gives you Full-time Power Steering or bigger, smoother, safer Power Brakes!

Your Chrysler Dealer wants to show you the biggest dollar-value car on the road today. Stop by soon for the greatest motoring experience ever. Ten-to-one you'll call it "Terrific!"

Man Is Charged Following Mishap

The sheriff's office is investigating an accident at Union Center early Sunday morning in which a 1955 automobile was badly damaged.

A charge of grand larceny, first degree, was placed against Richard E. Wiltsie, 23, of Rifton, who was accused of taking the automobile, his mother's, without permission, but investigation of Wiltsie's claim that someone else was driving at the time of the accident is continuing.

DEPUTIES George Bynner and Charles McCullough reported the accident occurred about 3:55 a. m. Sunday when the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve and struck stone steps on the property of Grover C. Bunje on the Union Center road.

Wiltsie allegedly took the vehicle about 8 p. m. Saturday, according to Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg. According to Wiltsie's statement, he picked up an unidentified youth, who was at the driver's wheel when the accident occurred.

No personal injuries were reported.

Each Side

lion-dollar highway improvement program.

While the governor was critical of GOP treatment of parts of his program, he made it evident that he did not intend to call a special session. Earlier, he had said he would call one if the lawmakers failed, in his opinion, to carry out their legislative responsibilities.

In appraising the session, Harriman declared that "in some cases favorable action has been achieved from the impact of aroused public opinion."

"THREE SEPARATE efforts were made to scuttle basic (rent) controls," Harriman said, "but each time the sponsors of these proposals withdrew under the pressure of aroused public opinion."

He said that his election last November had brought a "change of atmosphere" to the Capitol and added: "We are now able to make sure that if constructive legislative proposals are brushed aside or pigeonholed in legislative committees, it must be done in full public gaze."

Harriman hailed the authorization of a privately financed development corporation to assist new and expanding industry in the state. And he cited the adoption of a measure to prohibit discrimination in housing built with federal aid in the form of insurance.

He praised, too, measures to implement the attack on juvenile delinquency. These included legislation to create an 11-member temporary commission to organize a conference on delinquency. This was a compromise between his program and that of Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits for handling the problem.

HARRIMAN RAPPED the Republicans for what he called their "failure" to boost corporation taxes nine per cent to their pre-World War 2 level, scrap the Hughes-Brees amendment to the Unemployment Insurance Act, which gives a tax break to firms with stable employment records, and repeal the Condon-Wadlin law forbidding strikes by public employes.

"In many other fields, the action of the Legislature was mixed, or was totally disappointing," he declared.

A resolution memorializing Congress to boost the federal minimum wage to $1.25 an hour was kept in committee, and Harriman called this "an inexcusable performance."

Mahoney declared that the Republicans had been "on guard against attempts to revive the New Deal-Fair Deal socialistic panaceas . . . We have resisted their attempt to restore the evil old high tax-heavy spending policies which represent the Liberal party practice of being liberal with other people's money."

THE GOP LEADER contended that Harriman was showing an "inevitable tendency . . . to promote his own presidential candidacy."

We are tolerant of such ambitions," Mahoney asserted, "but must be vigilant that they are not promoted at the expense of the state government."

The highlights of legislation passed would:

1. Permit legalization of bingo by constitutional amendment. The measure needs approval by the Legislature to be elected next year before it is submitted to the voters. Under the proposal, localities would decide themselves whether to let religious, charitable and veterans groups run games under strict safeguards to bar racketeers.

2. Defer from Sept. 1 to Dec. 1, 1956, the deadline for compulsory safety inspection of automobiles. Harriman had suggested the delay to permit further study of its operation.

3. Permit construction of a dam at Panther mountain in the Adirondacks. The proposal goes before the voters next fall.

4. Float a 750-million-dollar bond issue for highway construction. This is to be submitted to the voters next fall.

5. BOOST THE STATE GASOLINE tax from four to six cents a gallon and increase the motor fuel levy from six to nine cents a gallon. These would take effect only if the highway bond issue were approved.

6. Extend the rent control law until June 30, 1957, dropping controls for 17 counties and relaxing them in five others.

7. Boost the maximum unemployment insurance benefit from $30 to $36 a week, and cover 285,000 more workers in the next two years.

8. Create a $75,000 "watchdog" committee to keep tabs on administration's operations. It was established by concurrent resolution, which does not require the governor's signature.

9. Allow the management of the four thoroughbred racing tracks to merge into a giant non-profit corporation to carry out a 45-million-dollar improvement program and make Belmont Park a "dream track."

In New York city, Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits, a Republican, and Investigations Commissioner Irwin Shapiro, a Democrat, alternately praised and denounced the creation of the "watchdog" committee. Both appeared on a television program (Between the Lines, Dumont).

Javits said the committee was designed to operate in the manner of a smaller Hoover commission. He called it "necessary and desirable" and declared it could do much good.

Shapiro termed it a "plain piece of political demagoguery" and said it constituted "a blackjack on the Commissioner of Investigations."

In spite of the criticism, the statement of Harriman and Mahoney carried a note of political amity.

"I welcome the inter-party cooperation which has made it possible to enact far-reaching measures," Harriman said.

AND MAHONEY declared that the GOP Legislature was ready "to do its share and more in showing that a governor and a legislature of opposite political faiths can work together loyally and well."

Dozens of bills were taken up in the waning hours of the session.

The Assembly rules committee killed a Senate-passed bill that would have allowed big-city banks to establish branches in suburban villages.

The life of the Saratoga Springs Authority was extended for one year, until July, 1956. Harriman had asked for the extension, pending a study of criticism against the Authority.

A bill was passed to require railroads to pay their New York state employes once a week, instead of every 10 days. Thursday was designated as pay day.

General Asks

denial of any responsibility for the Yalta concessions. The newspaper said the general was known to have pleaded "for concessions to get Russia into the Japanese war."

SIMILAR STATEMENTS were made in Congress by Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D-Lib.-N. Y.).

MacArthur repeated anew last night his earlier denial of this, saying:

"After the recent publication of the Yalta documents, to my utter amazement, it was stated on the floor of the Senate that the concessions made at Yalta by the American and British chiefs of state were based upon my recommendations.

"Such statement is utterly unfounded and without the slightest basis in fact."

He said military advice given to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill at Yalta came from the joint chiefs of staff of the respective countries. MacArthur continued:

"THE ESTIMATE of these chiefs of staff that the war with Japan would last for 18 months after the Soviet had entered was at complete variance with my own publicly announced estimate of Japan growing weakness. . . .

"Indeed, so confirmed was my belief in Japan's early defeat that discussions were held at my headquarters concerning the possibility of finishing off Japan even before the close of the European war."

MacArthur has previously stated he felt Russia should have entered the war against Japan after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He said he urged such a step in a message to Secretary of War Stimson on or about Dec. 13, 1941, but received no reply.

Russia was finally brought into the Japanese war under the Yalta agreement which provided that it declare war on Japan within three months after the end of the war in Europe. The war in Europe ended May 7, 1945, and Russia entered the war against Japan Aug. 8. On Aug. 14 Japan surrendered.

IN ITS EDITORIAL disputing MacArthur's denial of any responsibility for the Yalta concessions, the Washington Post and Times-Herald cited a section of the diaries of the late James V. Forrestal.

The diary of the then secretary of the navy reported a talk between Forrestal and MacArthur two weeks after the Yalta conference. It said MacArthur at that time discussed the planned invasion of Japan and urged that "as many Japanese divisions as possible should first be pinned down on the mainland, principally by Soviet forces."

MacArthur denied making such a statement to Forrestal.

Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, ret., MacArthur's aide, challenged the authenticity of this section of the diary and suggested that if Forrestal actually did dictate it, he might have been suffering from mental illness.

THE ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Times, in a copyrighted article last night, quoted two persons close to Forrestal at the time as vouching for the authenticity of his diaries.

The newspaper said Miss Katherine Foley, former confidential secretary to Forrestal and now a resident of St. Petersburg, told a reporter, "there's not the slightest doubt of the authenticity of the Forrestal entry." She described the suggestion that Forrestal had been mentally ill as "ridiculous."

The newspaper also said it had talked by long distance telephone to a stenographic reporter who accompanied Forrestal on the 1945 Pacific trip during which he met MacArthur. It said the reporter, H. C. Oberlander, who was reached in Kansas City, said he was sure the diaries as published were accurate.

Central Opens

landed on its side in about four feet of water of Schodack creek. Francis Temple, 33, of Ossining, the fireman, grabbed Kelly and pulled him from the water.

Both were taken to Memorial Hospital in Albany. Temple's condition was reported as fair.

In all, 25 persons were treated at hospitals here and at Hudson. Ten remained overnight and eight of those stayed over the weekend.

Five injured crewmen and passengers remained at Columbia Memorial Hospital at Hudson. The hospital said all were in good condition.

Two passengers were discharged from Albany Hospital yesterday. A third was held over the weekend but was reported satisfactory.

Ten cars of the 14-car train left the tracks but stayed on the roadbed. The Central said about 2,000 feet of one track were torn up and about 500 feet of the other.

Trains between Albany and New York were run over the railroad's West Shore Division tracks on the opposite side of the river while both mainline tracks were closed. After the first track was reopened, trains in both directions used it by means of switching operations.

A big crane was derailed on the way to the wreck Saturday night and blocked one track of the line connecting the West Shore and the main line at the east end of the railroad bridge at Castleton, about six miles south of Albany. That track was reopened yesterday, the railroad said.

The diesel tumbled into the water about 150 feet beyond the rockslide. The rest of the train rolled another 100 yards.

Seven sleepers, a tavern car, a combination baggage and crew dormitory car and the front end of the diner were derailed. The last four cars, all coaches, remained on the tracks. Several sleepers crashed into telegraph poles beside the tracks, knocking out railroad communications.

A fisherman told state police he saw rocks and shale slide onto the tracks from the embankment seconds before the train rounded the curve. He said he heard the brakes applied.

James P. McMahon, 35, of Albany, the baggageman, waded to the diesel and dragged Kelly and Temple onto the side above water. Volunteer rescue workers carried the injured men to shore using a ladder as a bridge.

Among those treated at Albany Hospital and released were Mrs. M. F. Ashbrook, Scarsdale, and Herbert Hannibal, Long Island, Ellis Butler, 100-01 34th avenue, Corona.

are scheduled to be re-equipped with faster-than-sound fighters, Wilson reported. The B36, piston-engined long-range bombers now in use by the strategic air command will be replaced with all-jet B52 heavy bombers, he said.

Air force strength by June 30, 1956, is planned for 131 wings—within six wings of the eventual goal. The size of a wing varies from 30 to 75 planes, depending on type. The planned strength for 1956, Wilson said, is "four more combat wings than the air force thought they could achieve one year ago." By 1956, he added, the number of active planes in the air force will have increased to about 23,000 "and will continue to increase in fiscal year 1957."

Wilson's plans for the navy in the coming fiscal year would leave it little changed in the number of ships in the fleet. He said the plan was for operation of over 1,000 ships, including 405 combat vessels.

THE NEW 60,000-tON, supercarrier Forrestal class ships, Wilson said, will be equipped with "newly developed aircraft with improved capabilities." The fleet will be "augmented by one additional carrier," Wilson said, apparently referring to the appearance of the Forrestal in the fleet during the coming fiscal year.

In advance of Wilson's appearance, Sen. Chavez (D.-N. M.) said Ridgway and other army officers would have a full opportunity at the hearings to protest the projected army manpower cut.

"I have taken no stand on this controversy but we want all the facts," said Chavez, chairman of the subcommittee handling the military budget request for about 35 billion dollars.

'I think I speak for all members of the committee when I say we want to give them every dime they need for national defense, but we want to be certain it is for defense and does not involve waste or duplication."

Ham Price Omitted

Arrest Is Made After Three Are Hurt in Rifton

Three persons were injured and one was arrested as a result of an automobile accident at Rifton early today, according to a sheriff's office report.

Derek Christopher Deegan, 21, whose address was listed as the Veterans Administration Hospital at Castle Point, was the driver of an automobile traveling south on Route 213 which failed to negotiate a sharp curve, ran off the right shoulder of the road, crossed a private driveway and went down an embankment at 12:30 a. m. today, the sheriff's office reported.

INJURED WERE Mary Ann McDermott, 18, of 18 Morehouse road, Poughkepsie, who was taken to Kingston Hospital for examination of back and head injuries; Janice Ott, 18, of 2 Priscilla Lane, Poughkeepsie, treated for a laceration of the lower lip and bruises of the lower right leg, and Robert Baisley, 23, of Wappingers Falls, treated for lacerations and bruises of the lower left leg. Deputy Sheriffs Albert Eisele and Peter Peterson reported.

Deegan was arrested on charges of speeding and disorderly conduct. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Allan Dargie, a plea of innocent was entered and Deegan was released on bail for hearing on Wednesday at 7 p. m.

McCreel Arrested

Harman McCreel, 29, of 35 Stuyvesant street, was arrested at 5:50 p. m., Saturday by William Washington, Jr., at the above address on a third degree assault charge. The charge was withdrawn in city court today.

Man Is Charged Following Mishap

The sheriff's office is investigating an accident at Union Center early Sunday morning in which a 1955 automobile was badly damaged.

A charge of grand larceny, first degree, was placed against Richard E. Wiltsie, 23, of Rifton, who was accused of taking the automobile, his mother's, without permission, but investigation of Wiltsie's claim that someone else was driving at the time of the accident is continuing.

DEPUTIES George Bynner and Charles McCullough reported the accident occurred about 3:55 a. m. Sunday when the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve and struck stone steps on the property of Grover C. Bunje on the Union Center road.

Wiltsie allegedly took the vehicle about 8 p. m. Saturday, according to Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg. According to Wiltsie's statement, he picked up an unidentified youth, who was at the driver's wheel when the accident occurred.

No personal injuries were reported.

lion-dollar highway improvement program.

While the governor was critical of GOP treatment of parts of his program, he made it evident that he did not intend to call a special session. Earlier, he had said he would call one if the lawmakers failed, in his opinion, to carry out their legislative responsibilities.

In appraising the session, Harriman declared that "in some cases favorable action has been achieved from the impact of aroused public opinion."

"THREE SEPARATE efforts were made to scuttle basic (rent) controls," Harriman said, "but each time the sponsors of these proposals withdrew under the pressure of aroused public opinion."

He said that his election last November had brought a "change of atmosphere" to the Capitol and added: "We are now able to make sure that if constructive legislative proposals are brushed aside or pigeonholed in legislative committees, it must be done in full public gaze."

Harriman hailed the authorization of a privately financed development corporation to assist new and expanding industry in the state. And he cited the adoption of a measure to prohibit discrimination in housing built with federal aid in the form of insurance.

He praised, too, measures to implement the attack on juvenile delinquency. These included legislation to create an 11-member temporary commission to organize a conference on delinquency. This was a compromise between his program and that of Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits for handling the problem.

HARRIMAN RAPPED the Republicans for what he called their "failure" to boost corporation taxes nine per cent to their pre-World War 2 level, scrap the Hughes-Brees amendment to the Unemployment Insurance Act, which gives a tax break to firms with stable employment records, and repeal the Condon-Wadlin law forbidding strikes by public employes.

"In many other fields, the action of the Legislature was mixed, or was totally disappointing," he declared.

A resolution memorializing Congress to boost the federal minimum wage to $1.25 an hour was kept in committee, and Harriman called this "an inexcusable performance."

Mahoney declared that the Republicans had been "on guard against attempts to revive the New Deal-Fair Deal socialistic panaceas . . . We have resisted their attempt to restore the evil old high tax-heavy spending policies which represent the Liberal party practice of being liberal with other people's money."

THE GOP LEADER contended that Harriman was showing an "inevitable tendency . . . to promote his own presidential candidacy."

We are tolerant of such ambitions," Mahoney asserted, "but must be vigilant that they are not promoted at the expense of the state government."

The highlights of legislation passed would:

1. Permit legalization of bingo by constitutional amendment. The measure needs approval by the Legislature to be elected next year before it is submitted to the voters. Under the proposal, localities would decide themselves whether to let religious, charitable and veterans groups run games under strict safeguards to bar racketeers.

2. Defer from Sept. 1 to Dec. 1, 1956, the deadline for compulsory safety inspection of automobiles. Harriman had suggested the delay to permit further study of its operation.

3. Permit construction of a dam at Panther mountain in the Adirondacks. The proposal goes before the voters next fall.

4. Float a 750-million-dollar bond issue for highway construction. This is to be submitted to the voters next fall.

5. BOOST THE STATE GASOLINE tax from four to six cents a gallon and increase the motor fuel levy from six to nine cents a gallon. These would take effect only if the highway bond issue were approved.

6. Extend the rent control law until June 30, 1957, dropping controls for 17 counties and relaxing them in five others.

7. Boost the maximum unemployment insurance benefit from $30 to $36 a week, and cover 285,000 more workers in the next two years.

8. Create a $75,000 "watchdog" committee to keep tabs on administration's operations. It was established by concurrent resolution, which does not require the governor's signature.

9. Allow the management of the four thoroughbred racing tracks to merge into a giant non-profit corporation to carry out a 45-million-dollar improvement program and make Belmont Park a "dream track."

In New York city, Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits, a Republican, and Investigations Commissioner Irwin Shapiro, a Democrat, alternately praised and denounced the creation of the "watchdog" committee. Both appeared on a television program (Between the Lines, Dumont).

Javits said the committee was designed to operate in the manner of a smaller Hoover commission. He called it "necessary and desirable" and declared it could do much good.

Shapiro termed it a "plain piece of political demagoguery" and said it constituted "a blackjack on the Commissioner of Investigations."

In spite of the criticism, the statement of Harriman and Mahoney carried a note of political amity.

"I welcome the inter-party cooperation which has made it possible to enact far-reaching measures," Harriman said.

AND MAHONEY declared that the GOP Legislature was ready "to do its share and more in showing that a governor and a legislature of opposite political faiths can work together loyally and well."

Dozens of bills were taken up in the waning hours of the session.

The Assembly rules committee killed a Senate-passed bill that would have allowed big-city banks to establish branches in suburban villages.

The life of the Saratoga Springs Authority was extended for one year, until July, 1956. Harriman had asked for the extension, pending a study of criticism against the Authority.

A bill was passed to require railroads to pay their New York state employes once a week, instead of every 10 days. Thursday was designated as pay day.

General Asks

denial of any responsibility for the Yalta concessions. The newspaper said the general was known to have pleaded "for concessions to get Russia into the Japanese war."

SIMILAR STATEMENTS were made in Congress by Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D-Lib.-N. Y.).

MacArthur repeated anew last night his earlier denial of this, saying:

"After the recent publication of the Yalta documents, to my utter amazement, it was stated on the floor of the Senate that the concessions made at Yalta by the American and British chiefs of state were based upon my recommendations.

"Such statement is utterly unfounded and without the slightest basis in fact."

He said military advice given to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill at Yalta came from the joint chiefs of staff of the respective countries. MacArthur continued:

"THE ESTIMATE of these chiefs of staff that the war with Japan would last for 18 months after the Soviet had entered was at complete variance with my own publicly announced estimate of Japan growing weakness. . . .

"Indeed, so confirmed was my belief in Japan's early defeat that discussions were held at my headquarters concerning the possibility of finishing off Japan even before the close of the European war."

MacArthur has previously stated he felt Russia should have entered the war against Japan after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He said he urged such a step in a message to Secretary of War Stimson on or about Dec. 13, 1941, but received no reply.

Russia was finally brought into the Japanese war under the Yalta agreement which provided that it declare war on Japan within three months after the end of the war in Europe. The war in Europe ended May 7, 1945, and Russia entered the war against Japan Aug. 8. On Aug. 14 Japan surrendered.

IN ITS EDITORIAL disputing MacArthur's denial of any responsibility for the Yalta concessions, the Washington Post and Times-Herald cited a section of the diaries of the late James V. Forrestal.

The diary of the then secretary of the navy reported a talk between Forrestal and MacArthur two weeks after the Yalta conference. It said MacArthur at that time discussed the planned invasion of Japan and urged that "as many Japanese divisions as possible should first be pinned down on the mainland, principally by Soviet forces."

MacArthur denied making such a statement to Forrestal.

Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, ret., MacArthur's aide, challenged the authenticity of this section of the diary and suggested that if Forrestal actually did dictate it, he might have been suffering from mental illness.

THE ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Times, in a copyrighted article last night, quoted two persons close to Forrestal at the time as vouching for the authenticity of his diaries.

The newspaper said Miss Katherine Foley, former confidential secretary to Forrestal and now a resident of St. Petersburg, told a reporter, "there's not the slightest doubt of the authenticity of the Forrestal entry." She described the suggestion that Forrestal had been mentally ill as "ridiculous."

The newspaper also said it had talked by long distance telephone to a stenographic reporter who accompanied Forrestal on the 1945 Pacific trip during which he met MacArthur. It said the reporter, H. C. Oberlander, who was reached in Kansas City, said he was sure the diaries as published were accurate.

Central Opens

landed on its side in about four feet of water of Schodack creek. Francis Temple, 33, of Ossining, the fireman, grabbed Kelly and pulled him from the water.

Both were taken to Memorial Hospital in Albany. Temple's condition was reported as fair.

In all, 25 persons were treated at hospitals here and at Hudson. Ten remained overnight and eight of those stayed over the weekend.

Five injured crewmen and passengers remained at Columbia Memorial Hospital at Hudson. The hospital said all were in good condition.

Two passengers were discharged from Albany Hospital yesterday. A third was held over the weekend but was reported satisfactory.

Ten cars of the 14-car train left the tracks but stayed on the roadbed. The Central said about 2,000 feet of one track were torn up and about 500 feet of the other.

Trains between Albany and New York were run over the railroad's West Shore Division tracks on the opposite side of the river while both mainline tracks were closed. After the first track was reopened, trains in both directions used it by means of switching operations.

A big crane was derailed on the way to the wreck Saturday night and blocked one track of the line connecting the West Shore and the main line at the east end of the railroad bridge at Castleton, about six miles south of Albany. That track was reopened yesterday, the railroad said.

The diesel tumbled into the water about 150 feet beyond the rockslide. The rest of the train rolled another 100 yards.

Seven sleepers, a tavern car, a combination baggage and crew dormitory car and the front end of the diner were derailed. The last four cars, all coaches, remained on the tracks. Several sleepers crashed into telegraph poles beside the tracks, knocking out railroad communications.

A fisherman told state police he saw rocks and shale slide onto the tracks from the embankment seconds before the train rounded the curve. He said he heard the brakes applied.

James P. McMahon, 35, of Albany, the baggageman, waded to the diesel and dragged Kelly and Temple onto the side above water. Volunteer rescue workers carried the injured men to shore using a ladder as a bridge.

Among those treated at Albany Hospital and released were Mrs. M. F. Ashbrook, Scarsdale, and Herbert Hannibal, Long Island, Ellis Butler, 100-01 34th avenue, Corona.

Wilson Sticks

are scheduled to be re-equipped with faster-than-sound fighters, Wilson reported. The B36, piston-engined long-range bombers now in use by the strategic air command will be replaced with all-jet B52 heavy bombers, he said.

Air force strength by June 30, 1956, is planned for 131 wings—within six wings of the eventual goal. The size of a wing varies from 30 to 75 planes, depending on type. The planned strength for 1956, Wilson said, is "four more combat wings than the air force thought they could achieve one year ago." By 1956, he added, the number of active planes in the air force will have increased to about 23,000 "and will continue to increase in fiscal year 1957."

Wilson's plans for the navy in the coming fiscal year would leave it little changed in the number of ships in the fleet. He said the plan was for operation of over 1,000 ships, including 405 combat vessels.

THE NEW 60,000-TON, supercarrier Forrestal class ships, Wilson said, will be equipped with "newly developed aircraft with improved capabilities." The fleet will be "augmented by one additional carrier," Wilson said, apparently referring to the appearance of the Forrestal in the fleet during the coming fiscal year.

In advance of Wilson's appearance, Sen. Chavez (D.-N. M.) said Ridgway and other army officers would have a full opportunity at the hearings to protest the projected army manpower cut.

"I have taken no stand on this controversy but we want all the facts," said Chavez, chairman of the subcommittee handling the military budget request for about 35 billion dollars.

'I think I speak for all members of the committee when I say we want to give them every dime they need for national defense, but we want to be certain it is for defense and does not involve waste or duplication."

Ham Price Omitted

The price of ham slices, advertised by the Mohican Market, 57-59 John street, in today's Freeman, should read 99 cents a pound. The price was inadvertently omitted from the advertisement.

Arrest Is Made After Three Are Hurt in Rifton

Three persons were injured and one was arrested as a result of an automobile accident at Rifton early today, according to a sheriff's office report.

Derek Christopher Deegan, 21, whose address was listed as the Veterans Administration Hospital at Castle Point, was the driver of an automobile traveling south on Route 213 which failed to negotiate a sharp curve, ran off the right shoulder of the road, crossed a private driveway and went down an embankment at 12:30 a. m. today, the sheriff's office reported.

INJURED WERE Mary Ann McDermott, 18, of 18 Morehouse road, Poughkepsie, who was taken to Kingston Hospital for examination of back and head injuries; Janice Ott, 18, of 2 Priscilla Lane, Poughkeepsie, treated for a laceration of the lower lip and bruises of the lower right leg, and Robert Baisley, 23, of Wappingers Falls, treated for lacerations and bruises of the lower left leg. Deputy Sheriffs Albert Eisele and Peter Peterson reported.

Deegan was arrested on charges of speeding and disorderly conduct. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Allan Dargie, a plea of innocent was entered and Deegan was released on bail for hearing on Wednesday at 7 p. m.

McCreel Arrested

Harman McCreel, 29, of 35 Stuyvesant street, was arrested at 5:50 p. m., Saturday by William Washington, Jr., at the above address on a third degree assault charge. The charge was withdrawn in city court today.

Las Vegas, Nev., April 4 (AP)—The highest U. S. atomic test burst will be unloosed six miles above Yucca Flat tomorrow, weather permitting. Mask Is Tested For Civilian Use

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

Cincinnati, April 4 (AP)—A $2 mask developed by the Army is being tested for possible use in protecting civilians against inhaling poison gas, germ weapons and radioactive dust, two Army scientists announced today.

Researchers Bernard Siegel and Frank Shanty of the Army Chemical Center, Maryland, reported that if test models meet protective requirements, the masks could be quickly mass-produced. They addressed the 127th national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

The low cost of the mask — figured at between $1.50 and $2 —compares with $14 for the standard military mask and $8 for a previously developed mask for civilians, they said.

Key to the cheapness of the new one, they explained, is the elimination of a relatively high cost metal "canister" for absorbing noxious gases or filtering out airborne germs and radioactive materials.

Instead, much of the face piece of the mask itself constitutes the "filter"—a fibrous mat forming a pad and containing an absorbent chemical. The face piece is attached to snug-fitting plastic materials which make the mask cling to the face and head. A harness holds it on the head. Plastic lenses are used for eye-pieces. The whole device can be machine produced.

The researchers aid work is also underway looking toward the development of a new military mask that would have "major improvements in protection, vision, compactness, speech transmission, wearability and comfort."

Mask Is Tested For Civilian Use

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

Cincinnati, April 4 (AP)—A $2 mask developed by the Army is being tested for possible use in protecting civilians against inhaling poison gas, germ weapons and radioactive dust, two Army scientists announced today.

Researchers Bernard Siegel and Frank Shanty of the Army Chemical Center, Maryland, reported that if test models meet protective requirements, the masks could be quickly mass-produced. They addressed the 127th national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

The low cost of the mask — figured at between $1.50 and $2 —compares with $14 for the standard military mask and $8 for a previously developed mask for civilians, they said.

Key to the cheapness of the new one, they explained, is the elimination of a relatively high cost metal "canister" for absorbing noxious gases or filtering out airborne germs and radioactive materials.

Instead, much of the face piece of the mask itself constitutes the "filter"—a fibrous mat forming a pad and containing an absorbent chemical. The face piece is attached to snug-fitting plastic materials which make the mask cling to the face and head. A harness holds it on the head. Plastic lenses are used for eye-pieces. The whole device can be machine produced.

The researchers aid work is also underway looking toward the development of a new military mask that would have "major improvements in protection, vision, compactness, speech transmission, wearability and comfort."
